

Rabbit for dinner

BY ALEDA O'CONNOR

Peter Jaehrling breeds rabbits. At any given time, he has between 200 and 300 rabbits in the barn, and it's only a hobby.

The contrast between the noise and dust of the Lake Ontario Cement plant where Mr. Jaehrling works, and the hush of his 5 acre farm outside Picton, where he raises the rabbits, chickens, geese, turkeys, guinea fowl, doves, pigeons, even earth worms is dramatic.

"I can earn a good living at the cement plant," he grins, "but this is what I like. Some day I hope to expand. I hope I won't be working shifts for ever." The farm, of course, would keep him busy 24 hours a day, every day, but, as he said, he likes it.

His interest in the animals, however, is far from romantic or sentimental. As president of the Quinte Rabbit Breeders' Association, he is trying to promote rabbit meat as a gourmet treat, he is convinced that the meat will catch on, and believes that once people have tasted it, they'll never turn back.

"Two things have led to its lack of popularity," says Mr. Jaehrling. "First, people may have been put off the flavour of the meat by the taste of wild rabbit. There is just no comparison. Wild meat has a strong, tangy flavour, which domestic meat does not."

He continued, "Secondly, rabbits have been promoted as pets, and people don't eat pets."

In France 594,000,000 pounds of rabbit are consumed annually, compared to 1,760,000 pounds annually in Canada.

The mild flavoured meat, often compared to chicken, has a much higher protein count per ounce than any other meat, fewer calories per ounce and a lower bone to meat ratio. Eighty percent of the dressed rabbit weight is edible. Thus, a 2½ pound rabbit will very adequately feed four people.

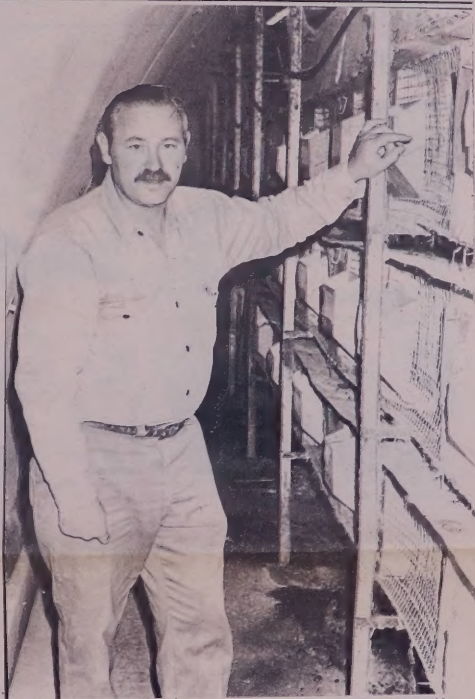

He said that rabbit meat is more easily digested, and recommended for children, the elderly, and people suffering from ulcers, and besides, "I just love it."

At the moment there are approximately 40 members of the Quinte Rabbit Breeders Association, which covers an area as far north as Ottawa, although most members are in the Napanee-Picton region.

There is a Rabbit Breeders 4-H Club in Napanee, under the leadership of David Sheffield. They can be counted on to try and tempt anyone and everyone to sample the meat.

Just two changes for by-law

Only two minor changes came as a result of a public meeting Thursday to discuss Deseronto's land use by-law.

Following a lively discussion, it was decided the Ministry of Transportation and Communications had legalized the use of larger tourist trailers, and that the section of the by-law governing their storage on residential lots should be amended to trailers or mobile homes (which are not lived in) to 25 feet, but this will be extended to the ministry's new limitations.

Another section of the by-law will

Geronimo! Here we come

Most Deseronto residents who could see up to 20 parachutists floating gracefully earthward off to the west on Saturday, were likely taken off guard. The arrival of the Deseronto Sport Parachute Club descended on the old Mohawk airport with just a whisper.

With virtually no advance publicity, about 150 veteran parachutists assembled at the airport, travelling from all over southern Ontario, Quebec and New York. According to the club's vice-president, Roy Whiston, the Reserve airport is an ideal central location and is the first drop zone in Canada with its own aircraft capable of carrying 20 or more skydivers.

The plane used is a Lockheed Lodestar, leased from an American company and makes up to eight flights per day, flown this time by a commercial pilot from Florida. Also available was a Twin Beech 18, which can only accommodate 12 jumpers, flown in from the St. Andre Parachute Centre in Quebec.

The gathering this weekend, however, was only the beginning of a summer, where every weekend and holiday will see parachutists over Tyendinaga skies. During the Victoria Day week-end, May 21 - 23, the organizers expect to see 250 to 300 jumpers.

Dam delayed?

Sophsburgh Township's representative on the Prince Edward Region Conservation Area, Gary Fox, told council last week that funds for the preliminary engineering for the Fish Lake dam were included in PERCA's budget this year, but hastened to add that this didn't mean it would or could be done.

Mr. Fox told council that under the new provincial grant structure, projects of over $30,000 that had originally been paid for 100% by the province are now paid 60% by the local authority, which is largely funded by communities in its jurisdiction.

The contract for the Demoretsville dam was let, said Mr. Fox, and work should commence on May 1. Another $2,000 had been allocated to fix up the entrance and otherwise tidy up the whole site, he said, and asked council if it would agree to supply gravel and topsoil at PERCA's cost. Council agreed that their rule for not selling gravel was not really applicable in this case and would help in finishing up the dam site.

Players were caught going both ways -- but she's safe. Baseball season started in Deseronto last week, and is on every weeknight till the July playoffs.

Letters

Mrs. Florence Needham seems surprised in this photo -- she will be after her former students and associates send in letters for her secret album.

Sophiasburgh Central
RR #2, Pictou

Dear Sir:

More than a thousand people who attended school in Sophiasburgh Township of Prince Edward County from 1936 to 1977 learned to read and write through the teaching of Mrs. Florence (nee German) Needham. She says she has never encountered a student that she couldn't teach to read, quite an accomplishment in these times when educators are in a flap over the number of students in our school systems who are unable to read.

Now, after a teaching career spanning 40 years, Mrs. Needham is retiring, and the staff and students of Sophiasburgh Central School are planning a celebration in her honour.

But after the celebration is over, what will remain as a lasting tribute to Mrs. Needham for her years of devotion to the young people of Prince Edward County? In order to give her a memento of those years, the Retirement Committee plans to compile an album of letters to Mrs. Needham on her retirement from anyone who was associated with her during her teaching years -- her former students, parents of her former students, her inspectors, principals, and fellow teachers.

If you knew Mrs. Needham as a teacher during the years 1936 to 1977 at Mount Carmel School, Sarnesville School, or Sophiasburgh Central School, won't you take a few minutes to write her a letter? You might mention such things as experiences with her that you remember, funny things that happened at the school or in her classroom, what you feel you or your child gained from her.

If you are a former student, please mention the year you were with her. One of the sad things in a teacher's life is that she puts so much effort into helping her pupils and then never knows what paths their lives take after they leave school, so Mrs. Needham would be very interested to hear about what you are doing now. A picture of yourself or of your family would also be welcome.

Please send your letter to:
Mrs. Needham's Album

If you have a friend or relative who was a student or fellow teacher of Mrs. Needham's and who may not have seen this article, please send that person this clipping so that he or she may write a letter also.

This album of letters is to be presented to Mrs. Needham as a surprise, so those who know her are requested not to mention it to her. The retirement committee wishes to thank in advance all of you who take the time to write a letter which will help to make Mrs. Needham's retirement celebration one that she will remember always.

Well, here we go again, all the election shouting and hollering and name calling is starting up as usual. Was reading in the Scanner last week as the Deseronto Council is fighting on their water plant being an issue in this election. Reckon they're probably right, from all the letters that young Liberal feller Hobson has been writing to the editor. Looks as though he's planning to push that real good. Our Clarke who "takes good care of us" had better come up with some answers pretty sharpish if he don't want to get caught out with his briches down.

Over the bridge our Sweet Baby James is running again, with some opposition from both the Liberals and then NDPers. I hear that he don't care for the NDP at all, and if'n they start into bugging him about his energy policies nuclear plants and radioactive wastes and such, we might well see some real nice fireworks.

Can't say as I got too much time to spend worrying over the outcome. I figured a long while back that I should oughter vote for the best guy, not for the party. Can't see putting in a vote for a feller I can't abide, just on account of him being in the right party.

Anyway, right now, I'm too busy with the seedling to pay too much heed, other than listening to what I can hear on the news. I put in a field of pasture mix last week, just before that big rain, so I reckon it should come up pretty good.

Maybe when the planting is done, I might get time to run around and listen to all the nonsense that will be flying, but I ain't promising nothing, figger as it's all a game anyways.

Some still not hooked to sewers

Deseronto has made an application for about $60,000 from the Ontario Home Renewal Program, some of which could be used to connect some residents to the town's sewage system.

The April 21 deadline for hooking up to the town's system has passed, and 15 occupied residences remain with their septic systems. Town Clerk Carmen Milligan said 36 houses in the town suspected to be still on septic tanks were surveyed. Seven houses were found to be vacant, six were found to be already connected, and seven residences were in the process of hooking up, leaving fifteen not connected in any way.

While not all of the fifteen would likely receive assistance, those in dire financial need may receive some OHRP funds for hooking up. Otherwise council has the power to hookup all fifteen, and charge the expense along with the property's tax bill.

Councillor Al Blayney, who investigated the OHRP grant, said council must adopt bylaw or resolution a set of property standards to receive the grant. "They're not all that demanding, and they can be changed by council at any time," he said.

Clean up

Pictou's annual spring clean-up began Monday, while other area municipalities are still hibernating.

The cleanup, which will continue until Friday, allows town residents to dispose of bulky worn out articles, such as furniture and appliances, as well as lawn and garden refuse.

Correction

After discussions with Deseronto Town Clerk Carmen Milligan and former mayor Peter Dickinson, the Scanner has learned of an error in a story last week entitled "Vick got $5 an hour".

According to the sources Councillor Fletcher Vick and Mr. Dickinson received payment for only one weekend of work each, until a town resident was hired to act as custodian of the dump. Mr. Dickinson said he did the work not expecting any compensation. He added that he had helped "at no charge" during the clean-up weekend, and worked at the dump only when the regular attendant left the job.

The Scanner regrets the error and hopes inconvenience to the parties involved was minimal.

About 300 participants came out for the Napanee Kinsmen's "Hike and Bike-a-thon" held Saturday morning. Roughly equal numbers of hikers and cyclists participated, in a fund-raising effort for Kinsmen community projects and the new Adult Rehabilitation Centre in Richmond Industrial Park.

Results of the event will be released following the May 20 deadline for participants to hand in their collected pledges. Prizes and awards in several different categories will be awarded at that time. About $4,000 was raised last year.

Seniors need Volkswagons

Eight additional parking spaces for the Deseronto Senior Citizens apartment complex were approved last week by council. The original four were found to be insufficient for the tenants needs. There are 35 apartments in the complex.

Councillor Al Blayney initially opposed the allowance, noting the dimensions for the individual parking spots fell short "by a considerable amount" of the requirements set down in Deseronto's proposed land-use by-law. He asked if senior citizens were all expected to drive small cars. Reeve Roger Cole convinced Blayney however that it didn't really matter how big the parking spaces were, so long as the parking situation was improved. He said parking on Edmon Street was outlawed because of the nearby fire hall entrance.

The first residents of the building took occupation of their apartments last week, a few days before the official occupancy date of May 1.

Successful show

Sophiasburgh Central School hosted a 23-act variety show Friday night, drawing out an audience of about 400. School principal Wayne Lindsay said about $300 was raised at "Entertainment '77", which will be used to purchase a saxophone and a flute for the school band.

The band, directed by Mr. Edwards, opened and closed the show, and drew praise from Mr. Lindsay who said he was "very pleased with the progress our school band has made over the past three years."

The other 21 acts demonstrated a great "willingness to participate", said Mr. Lindsay, who directed the show, in that the show was open to anyone and there was a good cross section of students from kindergarten through grade eight involved. Eighteen of the acts were of a musical nature, while other students did skits, step danced or gymnastics.

Mr. Lindsay said the show had hidden advantages, saying it was a "good learning situation" for those involved in lighting, stage, tickets and advertising -- "that's a real-life situation."

Peter Jaehrling hopes to expand form of chicken-flavoured rabbits to 600.

Mr. Jaehrling estimates that it would take approximately 500 to 600 rabbits to make a full time operation. But, in contrast to other types of farming it is relatively simple to try it out and see if one is interested, because it takes only 3 or 4 does and one buck to start. A healthy, well cared for doe will produce up to 50 young each year.

They are raised until they weigh from 3 to 5 pounds in 8 to 10 weeks, then sold for approximately $1.50 per pound to processors. Breeding animals sell for considerably more.

"Don't let the price frighten you," said Doris Jaehrling, "because the meat is so compact that you need much less to feed each person, so it's not as expensive as it sounds."

Rabbit in Sweet and Sour Sauce

1 fryer (2 to 3 pounds) rabbit, cut in pieces
1/4 cup flour mixed with 1 tbsp. salt,
1/2 tsp. marjoram and 1/4 tsp. pepper
1/3 cup butter
1 cup chicken bouillon
1 cup red wine
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
3 tbsp. sugar
1/3 cup sultana raisins

Dredge rabbit pieces in flour/spice mixture. In heavy flameproof casserole brown rabbit in butter for 15 minutes. Pour chicken bouillon and wine over rabbit. Bring to boil, cover casserole. Bake at 325 degrees for 1 1/2 hours.

10 minutes before it's done: Combine vinegar with sugar in small saucepan. Cook until most of the vinegar has evaporated. Immediately dissolve the resulting caramel with 1/2 cup of the hot cooking liquid from the casserole. Return to the casserole. Add raisins and stir. Cover and bake for 30 minutes more. Serve with wild or brown rice.

AMAZING GRACE

As a child I was taught a lot of negatives - don't do that, don't do this. Why? Because it is a sin.

In 1931 on August 28th, the Lord put His hand on my shoulder - there is a better way than this. Like a tree shedding its leaves in fall, the habits of 16-17 years fell off, tobacco, liquor, swearing, stealing, lying, slandering, white lies.

He reached away down to rescue me from from sin's dark night, praise Him.

Redeemed by Blood Divine, Precious Treasure, Thou art mine.

Signs of the times

BY MARK WEIDMARK

It's enough to drive a newspaper reporter crazy.

"Sign crazy" was the phrase used by Napanee Mayor Lorne Smart recently to signify his town. His statement was obviously a sign of the times.

The issue revolves around a request from the Lennox and Addington County Museum on Thomas Street to erect some blue and gold directional signs. There are already some signs in town which direct people to the museum, and the town's other prominent historical site, McPherson House.

"Why do we have to set up another set of steel poles?" queried Mayor Smart, at Monday's meeting of council.

Nobody answered him. Reeve Ernest Marshall said the museum's curator, Mrs. Helen Hutchinson, was quite "turned off" because she had sent a map detailing locations and sizes of the signs she wished erected. In earlier newspaper reports, Mayor Smart went on a verbal crusade against the excessive number of signs, and the property committee decided to wait until they got a map. Little did they know, they had had the map, but the only person who recalls seeing it was Deputy Reeve Graham Strong. Clerk Jack McNamee returned the map following that property meeting.

Let's retrieve the map, said the mayor.

Reeve Marshall said the museum already has a number of signs, on Centre, Camden, 502...

"They won't put up signs unless we approve them. Mr. Reeve," corrected the mayor with vigour.

"I said outside the town" said the Reeve.

"Oh, I'm not talking about that..." retorted the mayor.

Defending the museum again, Reeve Marshall asserted "they should have signs to direct people to them — there's a lot of money spent on 'em." Acting as soon as possible, Deputy Reeve Graham Strong interjected "I don't know if we need the map..." indicating the locations for the signs were outlined in a letter received by council.

Tuckered out from the exchange, Mayor Smart stated "I'm just asking council what they want done."

Deputy Reeve Graham Strong then moved the museum be granted permission to erect the signs, provided they had MTC approval.

"Doesn't matter where they go?" asked Mayor Smart incredulously. "Well, that sure takes it out of our hands. I'm not against the signs, so long as they're not cluttered."

"Mumble, mumble, mumble" said council.

"I didn't object to signing, I just wanted to know where they're going. Gee!!!"

"Mumble, mumble, mumble" said council.

"I wanted to see the map!" shouted the mayor, slamming his pen down.

"Mumble, hrmph, mumble, mumble," said the Reeve.

"I don't know how you boys get along at County Council?" the mayor asked of Marshall and Strong.

"Just fine, just fine" Marshall said good naturedly.

Looking for some sort of compromise, Councillor Donald Holmes asked if the proposed signs were big, small or medium from the viewpoint of the MTC.

Nearing defeat, the mayor told Holmes "there's no sense arguing about it..."

Clerk McNamee said the proposed signs were about the same as others used for the museum.

Perceiving the mayor's argument against cluttered signs, and scanning over the list of proposed corners, Deputy Reeve Strong observed "I don't think that any of these are particularly heavily signed areas."

Council quickly voted unanimously to grant the museum permission to erect the signs, and went on to other business.

Cultured past

Boom towns, by their bustling nature, often attracted colourful groups of low-life and high-brows. Such was the logging boom town of Deseronto in the late 1800s.

What might have been described as the maturation of the village's literary life, the "Mill Point Echo" honoured the town for only two years, from 1877 to 1879.

Given a few years to recover from the small pox epidemic which drove the "Echo" to Tamworth, cultural activity once more renewed itself. The Deseronto Tribune, in one of its first issues, said: "Mr. Coleman, the artist, will soon be in his new gallery as workmen are now building and making the necessary alterations in the east end of Smith's Block. When finished he will have a number one gallery."

This report was published on October 11, 1883, four years after the demise of the "Echo", but once again centred in the mysterious Smith's Block, corner of Main and Princess.

Deseronto Bantams receive trophies

Deseronto Quinte Lion Bantams got together for the last time this season, and had a very enjoyable evening with players and parents in attendance at the Deseronto and District Community Centre last Monday. After a supper of fried chicken and doughnuts, the presentation of trophies took place. Each player was awarded a small individual trophy for being a member of the Quinte-St. Lawrence Bantam "B" champs. The Championship Trophy was not available Monday night, and District Convenor for the OMHA, Mr. Doug Hearn stated that he did not have time to look for it at this time. It will be presented at a later date.

The team members then voted for the player that would receive trophies for the "Most Valuable Player", and for the "Most Sportsmanlike Player", and the Most Valuable Player award is a new plaque donated to the Deseronto OMHA Bantams by the Deseronto Lions Club. Voting ended in a tie, and the names of Ronnie VanVlack and Garry Galt will be engraved on the plaque as co-winners for the 1976-77 season.

The boys were each given a small plaque to keep. Mr. Doug Starling, President of the Deseronto Lions made the presentation.

The player who best exhibited "good sportsmanship and ability" was Art Lightowler. Art's name will be engraved on another new trophy, "The Vernon F. Green Memorial" for the 1976-77 season. This award, donated by the family of Vern Green will also be an annual award. Players were also presented with team photos, and yearly team statistics.

Deseronto Bantams were a much improved team in their sophomore year, and showed improvement every game to the last. The team wishes to thank everyone who supported them throughout the year, the parents for their transportation and "practice money", the Deseronto Lions for their faithful financial support without which the trophies would probably not have been awarded, and for all the people who supported weekly with the "NHL Hockey Pool". This hockey pool enabled the team to raise almost $600 this year, and made it possible to discontinue charging the boys for their practice time in early January.

Top point getter for the 1976-77 season was Garry Galt with 32 goals and 23 assists for 55 points, followed closely by Ronnie VanVlack with 32 goals and 21 assists for 53 points. Remaining point getters were in order:

Player	Goals	Ass.	Pts.
Les Panchard	23	11	34
Cory Vick	9	20	29
Lenard Farrell	9	13	22
Dale Ziemann	1	16	17

Other boys who played for the Bantams this year were: Rob McFarlane, Eddie Maracle, Dave Layfield, Robi. Binti, Terry Dennison, Trevor Brant, Bobby Barker, and Rob O'Brien. The last three boys only played one game each. Alan Brant and Bob Gardiner shared the goalkeeping duties, and did a steady job all year. Their goals against average was 5.89, but if the exhibition games were excluded, this average drops to a 5.20 average.

This average may seem a little high, but according to "The Hockey News", NHLers Gord McRae (Toronto) - 4.50, Gilles Villeneuve (Chicago) - 5.38, and Dave Tatarzyn (NY Rangers) - 7.50. These totals make a 5.20 average look pretty good.

Good luck next year Bantams.

Writers club urged for Picton

BY KAMAL ROSTOM

In a town where there are numerous people who express themselves in creative writing, whether in newspapers, magazines, or in their own books, it appears that a writers' club in Picton is not a luxury -- on the contrary, it is rather a necessity.

It is a fact that writers have their own interests, topics, jargons, etc. They are different in temperament, idiosyncracies, and inclinations from other people. They are inclined to discuss subject matters which don't usually belong to ordinary people. On the contrary, they seem to them strange and out of place. Indeed the mere presence of other people makes writers embarrassed and not at ease. On their part, writers are boring to other people. For who one earth heeds subjects as Finnegans Wake, or Ulysses of Joyce, Ala Recherche du Temps perdu of Proust, Metamorphosis of Kafka, Rhinoceroses of Unica, to mention but a few examples.

As I loathe crowding this space with prominent names in arts, science and social sciences, I'll refrain from doing so. I'll refrain too from referring to theories in science, movements in literature and arts, because these are the domains wherein writers and authors find themselves at home.

Outside the writers' club, these topics and the like would seem incongruous and outlandish, whereas when raised and discussed in the writers' club would broaden the minds of the participants, and give new dimensions and perspectives to the topics discussed.

Symposiums and lectures in strictly specified subjects could also be of great benefit for writers and authors. They expand their knowledge and galvanize their minds, and provoke their creativity in a way that couldn't be done elsewhere.

Literary saloons, on the other hand, are most need in a small town like Picton where social life is restricted to casual visits. In fact when I first came to Picton from Cairo, Egypt, three years ago, I was shocked by the droughtiness and sterility of the literary life in it. To my amazement there wasn't -- and still there isn't a single literary saloon in the town. Ironically there live in Picton many nationalities, namely the British, Irish, French, Italian, Indians, Egyptians, Arabs, and so forth. Imagine to yourself the richness, and fulness of life and experience if all or some of these nationalities gather in a literary saloon, and everyone tries to acquaint the others with his/her country's literature, traditions, and conventions. If there were no achievement other than this, it is not doubt worth the try.

All I said about the writers' club applies directly to the literary saloon, with one exception, namely, the intimacy that characterizes the latter.

Hence why not start right now to establish the writers' club, open our doors to our fellow writers and authors, with whom we enjoy the beauty of life.

Editors Note -- Kamal Rostom is a Picton freelance writer. He graduated from Cairo University with a B.A. in journalism, and is a district correspondent for the Toronto Sun.

Napanee council highlights

The following are highlights from the Napanee council meeting held on Monday:

EX-CANDIDATE Paul Kirkham suggested council establish a "Tourist Committee" to help business. He urged a new parking lot, signs for the museum, a fountain, buses to Deseronto and Newburgh to bring in shoppers. Mayor Smart angrily replied council was doing all it could.

LIBERAL campaign headquarters will be located in the old post office, from May 9 to June 12 following approval by council. Rent was set at $250, though some councillors wanted $400.

REACTIONS to the Tindal report are expected from council before July 1st, 1977 by the Personnel Committee of Council.

AN OPEN MEETING is slated for May 16 to discuss the proposed CNR underpass on Centre Street. The public is invited.

DUNDAS STREET, through the bouncy west end, is scheduled to be resurfaced this year. The town is affording it by not repairing Graham St. between Centre and John.

THE WADING POOL beside the library will be filled in and sodded this year. Next spring the Horticultural society will plant flowers there.

A PUBLIC ADDRESS system is being considered for the council chambers, since the architecture seems to absorb whatever meek sounds councillors seem capable of making.

PARKING PROBLEMS are still being studied. Eight hour meters on the John Street lot, and "permit holders only" for the Water Street lot are being considered as a means of getting employees and businessmen's cars out of the downtown core.

SWIMMING POOLS must be fenced in within two months, according to a by-law passed by council.

CONDOMINIUMS will be constructed on the southwest corner of Richard and Water Streets if a rezoning application by Rollins Construction gets through.

Just two changes for by-law

be amended in accordance with new provincial policies, Niall Carney, Director of Planning for Hastings told the nearly 20 residents and councillors assembled. The section governing farm buildings or feedlots will be made much more lenient, he said, changing the present limitations to a system which will determine the number of farm buildings must be from other property by the size and use of the building. Mr. Carney said whereas the present version stipulates such a building or feedlot may not be located within 2,000 feet of any residential property, the revision will allow small structures to come within 200 feet. There are two farms partially within Deseronto, a third of the town's area being zoned rural.

In his opening address Mr. Carney told his audience that the new by-law "does not in any way, shape or form effect an existing use for a property or building." The implications of this statement mean that several enterprises in town which are now operating in contravention of the town's zoning by-law passed in 1962, will be legalized as a "non-conforming use", since the new by-law will supercede all previous ones. As long as the non-conforming use is maintained, it will be allowed, but if it ceases, the new land use by-law will have jurisdiction over it.

Some town residents will be taking action to escape the new by-law before it comes into effect. A Dundas street resident will have to press quickly. Next with a problem he has, where a neighbouring service station has encroached upon residential property in contravention of the 1962 by-law. If the new by-law is passed before action is taken, the commercial use will be legalized, until such time as it is. Council has assisted the gentleman in the past, to no avail, and will be trying again.

Elsewhere the owner of Deseronto's only cottage, at the bottom of Water Street by the Sea Cadet Hall, has taken out a building permit for an addition, and must "begin" building within two years of the new by-law passing. The cottage is in an area to be zoned recreational, and is thus a non-conforming use. No expansion of a non-conforming use is permitted under the new by-law.

The two changes to the by-law will be discussed by council, the by-law revised, given its third reading, and recirculated again to all property owners. If there are objections, the Ontario Municipal Board will call a hearing to be held in town. If not, the by-law will likely be passed by the OMB.

Ministry's fault—Smith

residents and councillors heard what they wanted to hear this morning as Bob Smith, leader of the Ontario Liberal Party, arrived in town with Hastings-Peterborough candidate Dave Mahon to discuss the town's water situation.

Mayor John Neal has been fighting a losing battle in recent months against the influx of the homeless into the city. According to Neal, the city is doing everything it can to help the homeless. According to Mayor Neal, the city is doing everything it can to help the homeless. According to Mayor Neal, the city is doing everything it can to help the homeless.

Dr. Smith promised council "I'll try and dig up the original contracts, terms, and I'll try and get back to you, find the elusive Mr. Crabtree, and put the responsibility where it belongs, which seems to be the Ministry."

After twenty minutes of discussion on the water problem, the speaker Har-

Premier William Davis will officially open James Taylor's three campaign offices in Prince Edward—Lennox and tour the riding this Saturday, May 14. The premier will arrive at James Taylor's Amherstview campaign office in Loyalist Plaza at 12 noon to be greeted by old time fiddlers. Accompanied by the Prince Edward—Lennox MPP the premier will move on to Napanee, arriving at the constituency office, 57 Dundas Street East at 2 p.m. They will then walk to James Taylor's campaign office at 109 Dundas Street East, where the premier will officially open. There will be steak on a bun for the premier, then they will go on to Picton. The premier will open the Picton campaign office at 109 Main Street at 3:30 p.m.

Political bias splits council

The visitation of Dr. Stuart Smith, leader of the Ontario Liberal Party, reduced Deseronto council to a split between advocates of town interests and advocates of the Progressive Conservative Party at Monday's meeting. A request from Dr. Smith to meet with council this morning at 10 am prompted the discussion.

Leading a movement to turn the out-of-sight costs of the water purification plant into an election issue, Mayor John Neal criticized the present administration, saying "I personally feel that we have been getting no place with the people in power now - . . . Smith can help us now, we can only welcome him."

Roger Cole, a leading member of the Deseronto Progressive Conservative Association, defended the interests of the current MPP, Clarke Rollins (PC), stating he felt council should not give Rollins the wrong impression by playing one party against the other. He suggested that if the water plant became an election issue, after the campaign was over, Deseronto would be "left to hold the bag".

"I would strongly disagree with this," said Reeve Cole, referring to the mayor's strategy. "I really feel our member has made every attempt to alleviate our problems." Reeve Cole quoted figures of provincial funds spent in Deseronto, claiming several thousand dollars had been spent in recent years on each town resident. Mayor Neal replied with another set of figures, noting the several thousand dollars each water user would be paying out in future years, because of water rate increases.

"If its an election issue," Reeve Cole arqed further, "there's going to be some mud slung, and its going to be unfair mud."

"As opposed to fair mud?" interjected Councillor David Martin. Supporting Mayor Neal's stand, Martin said he would welcome Dr. Smith's visit, and said the town should not "give up if someone else has done all he can."

At the juncture, Councillor Bernie Johnston commented that he hoped all the attention the town was getting was not for reasons of the election alone. Mayor Neal replied that "these people (the Liberals) have been helping us from the first of the year," before the election was called.

When Reeve Cole began criticizing the Liberals for what he says is a one-time interest in the town, Mayor Neal

Small business amendment to go to OMB

The controversy, which has been raging in the town of Picton over the operation of small businesses in areas zoned residential, will now go to the Ontario Municipal Board.

A proposed amendment to the 1961 by-law would allow the owner or occupant of a house to carry on a business provided that a number of conditions were met. The amendment was passed by the Picton Town Council in a recorded vote Monday night. Approval of such an amendment, in effect, revokes a court decision against the operator of a small business who was fined last year for carrying on his business in a residential area.

The decision is expected to revive objections made by the neighbours of the business and by other town residents concerned about zoning by-laws.

The controversy arose when Queen Street resident, Jack Minaker was fined for operating a radiator repair shop in the garage next to his home, following a number of complaints by his neighbours, who insisted the premises be used only for residential purposes.

"No comment" - Rollins

Nearly 100 enthusiastic supporters of Clarke Rollins (NPP Hastings-Peterborough) turned out to hear him speak at a meeting of the Deseronto Progressive Association Friday night in the Odd-fellows Hall.

Creating an election platform of past provincial contributions to Deseronto, speakers at the meeting recalled all of the projects the province has helped fund over the past decade.

Reeve Roger Cole, who M.C.ed the evening, cited the Skyway Bridge, an addition to the school, the Medical Centre, Community Centre and Senior Citizens Apartments as projects in which Mr. Rollins had assisted.

Given his turn, Mr. Rollins cited the provincial government loan to Sheller-Globe of $500,000, which in turn brought the company to Deseronto and has created nearly 50 jobs. Drawing a laugh, he said "George (Lyons) asked for a liquor store", and we gave him one.

"I have not let the people of Deseronto down," said Rollins, criticizing some out-of-townners who had come down "stirring up local people". He said such people have never had an interest in Deseronto before, and would not after the election had passed.

Following the speeches, in discussion with a Scanner reporter, he refused to specify which "people" were stirring up local citizens.

In reference to the Deseronto water situation, where costs for the purification plant have skyrocketed, he said there was "no increase". He refused adamantly to discuss Environment Ontario estimates, and said he would not be taking any action until the entire project was completed, and the increased costs were a "fact". When such an increase is finalized, only then will he approach the Minister of Environment, "if I am elected."

On issues which effect the whole province, Mr. Rollins said he did not wish to make any comments. He said he was a rural man, and concerned largely with the municipalities in his riding.

Mr. Rollins has been a member of provincial parliament for the riding since 1959, capturing a solid chunk of the Deseronto votes in the last election.

responded that Council's foremost interest should be in the town -- "this is what were here for, not party politics, but for the town."

"It's easy to say..." blurted Reeve Cole, inexplicably stopping in mid-sentence.

"I don't think anybody knows my party politics," said Mayor Neal, adding that he was elected mayor and it was his job to do what he could for the town.

After further exchanges between Cole and Martin, Councillor Clarence Zieman joined in the defence of the Conservatives, noting "Clarke Rollins has done a tremendous amount of work here." He asked if Smith would be coming if there wasn't an election.

"Would anybody come?" asked Councillor Martin.

Nichol acclaimed for NDP candidate

Northport will be an active place this spring. Both New Democratic Party candidate, Jan Nichol, and James Taylor, the current MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox and Ontario Minister of Energy, live there.

At one of the most heavily attended nomination meetings for the Prince Edward - Lennox NDP Riding Association, held last week at the Inn on the Bay, in Picton, Ms. Nichol was chosen as the candidate for the June 9 election.

She is making her second attempt to defeat Mr. Taylor, and was not challenged in her bid to gain the nomination.

A graduate of the University of Toronto, Ms. Nichol majored in economics, political science, environmental studies and urban geography.

Following her graduation, she has worked among other things, as a researcher and writer for Ontario Hydro, as a Counsellor for Canada Manpower, and most recently as the Area Information Officer for the Rent Review Board.

Her roles in all these jobs have given her first-hand insight into what she cites as the primary issues of this campaign, unemployment, protection of natural resources and the burden of inflation.

She told supporters that she was confident the NDP would do much better this time, adding that "we need Liberal votes in this riding and to do this we must stress that we are the only viable alternative to the Conservatives. We're not going to change any of our policies, those are determined by delegates to our conventions. But we can start to publicize more fully those policies we do have already that might appeal to new groups of support. We have policies to help the small business. Let's make them known."

Tenders called

Tenders for the reconstruction of Main Street from Mill to Fourth in Deseronto were called last Friday, and must be submitted by June 1, Reeve Roger Cole said recently.

According to Reeve Cole, construction on Main Street could begin as early as June 13, and will be completed by early September.

Despite earlier intentions by Hastings County, the downtown part of the work is to be totally completed this year, rather than spread over two years.

If you operate a business or farm and create a new position for the summer, the Ontario Youth Employment Program will give you a grant of $1 per hour toward the wages of an unemployed youth you hire for the job.

As a matter of fact, grants are available for up to six new positions per business or farm for each operational site, and you may hire any unemployed youth between the ages of 15 and 24 who lives in Ontario and is eligible to work here.

The program will be in effect from May 30th to September 16th, 1977, but the full 16 week commitment is not required.

Employer application forms for the Ontario Youth Employment Program are available through your Jan Nichol, newly chosen NDP candidate for Prince Edward Lennox, chats with Mike Braugh, MPP for Oshawa and housing critic, at the NDP nomination meeting last week.

Nichol challenges Taylor

Jan Nichol, of Northport, who was chosen last week as the NDP candidate for this election, began almost immediately to take a swipe at the Conservative opponent, James Taylor, MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox, and Minister of Energy.

"When our local member, James Taylor, batted up as Minister of Community and Social Services and was demoted to Minister of Energy, we really started to worry about consumer protection from high energy costs."

"I don't need to tell you how your heating bill went up this year, or the cost of driving your car back and forth to work. A further oil price hike is proposed this year and also an 11.3 per cent increase in the cost of wholesale Hydro."

She said that the NDP believed that the Minister of Energy should have more control over his portfolio than is presently the case, "the truth is today that this is the smallest Ministry in the cabinet."

In addition, she said that it seemed the Ontario Government does not entirely support the decisions of the Ontario Energy Board, "all Hydro increases must be approved by the house after review by the Ontario Energy Board. Despite this, 50 percent increases have been permitted over the last two years."

The NDP, she said, would give greater powers to an Energy Board, "We would place oil prices under the Board's jurisdiction. Not only would the board review all proposed increases, we would also see that the oil companies were required to justify their present price structure. Not one penny until the oil companies open their books to us and prove an increase is justified."

Such actions would be "surely a more effective approach than Mr. Taylor's piteous whinings to the feds that we really don't want any more increases please. Anyway, knowing the Tory government's philosophy, I wonder how serious they really are about being opposed to increases?"

Ms. Nichol asked, "How many of their members receive money from oil corporations as campaign contributions. How many of them own shares or have friends who do?"

400 to conference

More than 400 delegates from the Bay of Quinte area will be travelling to Peterborough soon to attend the 53rd annual Bay of Quinte Conference.

The delegates will be representing about 170,000 members of the United Church who live in the Bay area, at the conference to be held May 16 to 19 at Trent University.

Speakers from Scarborough, and municipalities in Quebec and Michigan will be involved in the program which includes discussions on Canadian unity, theological reflections, effective lay-clergy ministry, work with persons with special needs, as well as an ordination service and entertainment.

from many businessmen who felt that he had been unfairly singled out, and Mr. Minaker appealed his conviction on the grounds that other operators in similar situations were not being convicted, saying that he was the victim of discrimination.

The amendment, relaxing the restrictions received objections from Prince Edward County Planner, Riazuddin Ahmed, who cautioned that the definitions were very broad and did not list the type of uses permitted. "As a result the residential areas of the town are being opened for all sorts of commercial and other non-conforming uses. To list a few that come to my mind: restaurant, all types of stores, bakeries, commercial laundry rooms," he wrote in a letter read to council Monday.

He also challenged a provision allowing up to 700 square feet in an accessory building to be used in a business, "as a matter of fact, all commercial uses listed above can be accommodated within this floor space."

"I am sure that your council does not wish to permit such non-conforming uses within the established residential areas of the Town. However," he continued, "this is exactly what they will be permitting if this by-law amendment is approved."

He noted that normally office-type home occupational uses are quite acceptable within residential areas and are usually specified in zoning by-laws.

Councillor Ross Cronkwright who introduced the amendment, said that two small businesses had been operating near his home and had never bothered him. "This is a small town, I'm in favour of small business and if you can't get along with small businesses operating in a small town, then you should go back to the city where you came from."

Councillor Barney Hepburn, while saying he was most certainly in favour of small businesses, said that he believed in orderly planning. "We must have plans. We have planning consultants, and some people are bound to be hurt by the plan, but all the areas will be designated by the plan." He questioned the introduction of the amendment and the subsequent cost of the OMB hearing to the town, particularly when the town's consultants and the County Planner, Mr. Ahmed, had voiced objections.

Nonetheless, the issue which has been simmering since the early fall of 1976 will be heard one more time before the OMB, and the issue will be resolved once and for all.

Portable toilets may replace bushes

While Councillor Stephen Hefferman told Deseronto council Monday night that Deseronto's baseball program was on a par with Kingston's -- Deseronto has 160 participants to Kingston's 180 -- the program seems to be a painful experience for some.

Councillor Bernie Johnston, who lives beside the Canada Optical field used by the girls teams, said his and other houses surrounding the field were getting quite a bit of traffic with regards to their washrooms. He suggested a committee look into the rental of portable toilets.

When asked if one should also be placed on the public school field, where games are also held, Councillor Johnston indicated that field was not as enclosed by houses, and "they seem to find places up there."

Reeve Roger Cole said he thought a portable washroom would, like other things in the town, become a victim of vandalism, but moved his finance committee look into the cost of rental.

WAYSIDE EVANGEL

LOVE THY NEIGHBOUR

Read John 4:20, it says "If any one says, 'I love God' and hates his brother he is a liar; for he who does not love his brother who he has seen, cannot love God whom he has not seen."

It's so easy to be religious and at the same time neglect one's neighbour. Listen.....

I was hungry - and you formed a committee to discuss my hunger. I was imprisoned - and you went to church to pray for my release. I was sick - and in your mind you debated the morality of my appearance. I was sick - and you knelt and thanked God for your health. I was homeless - and you preached the spiritual shelter of God's love. I was alone - and you left me alone.

You seem so holy and close to God, but I am still hungry, lonely, imprisoned and cold. Jesus said "In as much as ye have done to the least of my children, ye have done it unto me."

Disciples of today, what have you to give of material and spiritual help? Give, give, never mind your hurts. Give, do, go, say, share. The Lord will honour and bless you here and in the hereafter

Fluoride petition

Voters in the Town of Deseronto will have the option of closing down a fluoridation installation in the new water project, if a petition is turned in with the names of 10% of the electorate.

Reeve Roger Cole said the provision for a mass vote is made in the Ontario Government's Fluoridation Act. He said if such a petition were received, the question of whether fluoridation should be included in Deseronto's water supply would be included on the ballot during the next municipal election in 1978.

Contractors are already proceeding with the installation of the fluoridation equipment, which costs an estimated $15,000 to $20,000. Yearly operating costs for the facilities, which will be in operation by the time of the next election, are estimated at between $500 and $1,000.

Slavery returns

The days of slavery in Upper Canada has long since been a matter of history, but some Deseronto students are attempting a revival.

The grade eight French class of Mrs. Gloria Amodeo are selling themselves into bondage to finance a one-day trip to Ottawa-Hull.

According to Mme. Amodeo, the students are offering their services all this week (May 9-14), to be performed after school and on Saturday. Among the duties that could be assigned to a worthy slave is babysitting, spring cleaning, car washing, raking leaves, running errands, moving lawns, or you-name-it.

While on the trip to Ottawa-Hull, the students will be observing students in a French school learning to speak English, and eating in a full-fledged French restaurant.

Meantime, to reserve a slave, call 396-2825 or 396-2946 or 396-2047.

Deseronto Recreation News

by JACK LAYFIELD

For those who have been inquiring about the possibilities of having stage shows at the arena during the off-season the first one is coming up on Friday, May 20. This family type variety show is sponsored by the local Cubs and Scouts, and features a well known television personality "Barnyard Barney" with puppet acts, and special guest singers from the country field. Admission is $2.00 adults, and $1.00 for children.

DESERONTO INDUSTRIAL HOCKEY

Thanks to the organizational efforts of Dennis Layfield and the interest of local hockey enthusiasts, Deseronto will have a six team industrial hockey league for next season. The new league will be represented by teams from Deseronto, the Mohawk Reserve, Point Anne, Read-Lansdale, the Selby area and Napanee. All league and play-off games will be in the Deseronto arena on Monday and Friday nights.

A further meeting of the league executive is scheduled for the Arena Hall on Wednesday, June 1 to draft playing rules, schedules, etc. Every effort will be made to provide a calibre of play worthy of fan support from throughout the area.

LACROSSE

Tyendinaga Mohawk Lacrosse officials have entered four House League teams in the Eastern Central Lacrosse League for this season. Home games are scheduled to be played at the Deseronto Arena on Wednesdays beginning in June. As well, the senior team will participate in a series of exhibition games and a weekend tournament at the arena during the coming season.

TENNIS

A tennis instructional program is under way for the past two weeks. The regular season open tennis begins this week, Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. These playing at senior rates are in effect at that time. Pay as you play rates are $1.25 adults, or 75¢ students.

BASEBALL AND SOFTBALL

The response to a house league program of Baseball and Softball this year has been phenomenal to say the least, particularly in view of a definite lack of interest in the past couple of years. Gene Marlow and his committee are finding it difficult to cope with at times, since there are 150 to 200 youngsters participating. Games are being played four nights a week at both Canada Optical field, and the Public School ball diamond. The committee is in desperate need of additional umpires, and some person with transportation to assist the equipment manager, Dean McCann. If you can help over the next two months, call Gene Marlow at 396-3070.

MAY AND JUNE DANCES

Don't forget the two big dances coming up on May 28, and on June 25, both featuring "SHYLO". Tickets are on sale for the Minor Hockey Dance on May 28, and tickets will be available shortly for the June 25 dance in aid of the Community Centre-IOOF Lodge.

COMMUNITY CENTRE OPERATION

For the first two years ending Dec. 31, 1976, the community centre has shown a combined surplus of $5,200. During this period some $15,000 of additional improvements have also been carried out. Although the Minor Hockey and Softball seasons have accomplished much of this credit has to go to the contributions made by the Deseronto Community Centre Ladies Auxiliary. This group not only contributed some $1,000 over season to purchase ice time, but also made cash donations to the arena for time to time, such as their $1,000 allocated in 1975-76.

The Ladies Auxiliary, during this two year period, turned over $6,000 from centre profits, and have approximately at all or $6,000 earned over in 1977. These very dedicated ladies, and members of their families, contribute approximately 1700 hours each season to staff the arena centre.

GRANT FOR ADOLPHUSTOWN

Canada Manpower has made a grant of $9,903 for labour and other costs to assist in Adolphustown Council's plan to restore the Township Hall. As Adolphustown is the oldest township in Ontario, council established a special committee last year to investigate possible alternatives for restoring the hall. Currently council is awaiting the report from an architect and plans to set up a meeting to investigate other financing before proceeding with renovations.

MEDICAL CENTRE OPENED

The official opening of the Deseronto Medical Centre was held last Wednesday with a wine and cheese party at the Centre. The new, expanded facilities will accommodate the new dentist, Dr. McPhee, and an additional doctor is still being sought.

MANUFACTURING OPPORTUNITY

Napanee, Picton and Deseronto manufacturers are eligible to attend a Manufacturing Opportunity Days programme set for May 17 at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, in Belleville, the Ministry of Industry and Tourism reports.

The programme will include information on licensing and joint venture opportunities as well as contracts open for tender. Local industries with open production time may have this information circulated without cost.

4-YEAR OLD THIEVES

Two "housebreaking occurrences" listed in the Deseronto Police report for April were committed by a pair of four-year-olds.

Police Chief Carl Beattie said the youngsters had walked into an open house, picked up about $60, and trotted off to Malley's Variety to buy candy.

The report also revealed 3,580 kilometres has been logged on the force's new police cruiser. There were only 2 reportable accidents, and 14 charges under the Highway Traffic Act.

TIDIER ADOLPHUSTOWN?

Adolphustown Township Council is investigating the possibility of passing a by-law to control "unsightly material located improperly near roads, etc.," and to generally maintain neatness and cleanliness in the municipality.

SQUEAKY CLEAN

Spring cleaning is okay, but it got downright funny in Napanee Saturday morning. On one side of Dundas Street, a worker was busily cleaning the windows of the NDP's campaign office - and on the other side, another worker was just as vigorously cleaning the windows of James Taylor's government constituency office. Gonna be a squeaky clean election eh?

DOGS AT LARGE

Dogs running at large in Adolphustown Township has been a matter of concern for council before - now Walter and Mary Lynn Bell, of R.R. 1 Bath, report that their small pet dog was killed by larger dogs running at large. The matter was referred to the by-law Enforcement Officer.

SOPHIASBURGH LAND USE

Third reading of Sophiasburgh Township's Land Use By-Law will be made at the next meeting of council, May 16. Council met with the township's planners on Thursday to review the by-law and incorporate necessary changes.

37 PERMITS ISSUED

Construction and renovations valued at $225,400 were reflected in the building permits issued by Picton in April. In all there were 37 permits issued; for activities which included the construction of new houses, and the re-roofing of several others.

DAY CARE GRANT

The Tyendinaga Reserve is to receive a grant under the Canada Works program (Phase II), Jack Ellis, Hastings MP announced last week. The grant, which will create five jobs, will support a day care centre on the Reserve. Almost all other grants were given to Belleville, though Tweed, Bancroft, and Morrisville each received one. Phase II will begin in the fall, applications due by August 26, 1977.

Deseronto taxes up 13.3%

Residential mill rates for the Town of Deseronto increased by 14.87 mills over last year, according to the budget presented to Council at Monday's meeting. The 8.8 percent increase was largely the result of increased education levies, which jumped 9.10 mills, or 13.2 percent over 1976. The mill rate for county and town purposes increased only 5.77 mills, or 5.8 percent over last year.

Rates for Commercial property owners increased the same percentage points as did residential rates. Education levies caused a 10.11 increase, while the rate for county and town purposes jumped 6.80 mills.

The total for residential now sits at 184.41 mills, over last year's 169.54. The total for commercial is now 211.85 mills, over last year's 194.94. The property tax on a typical residential assessment of $2,000 is now $369, an increase of $30 over last year.

One of the major increases in expenditures this year was in recreation and cultural services, which is to receive twice as much money as last year. The 1976 expenditure of $13,257 was increased to $27,534 for 1977, though about half the increase is recoverable through government grants. New programmes such as baseball, and summer arts and crafts project, in addition to the anticipated purchase of a new bus as well as inflationary increases were responsible for the high expenditure.

The largest expenditure on the budget was police protection, which increased from $110,822 to $123,374. Education also cost the town over a hundred thousand dollars, while streets and general administration took eighty and seventy thousand dollar shares respectively.

While expenditures in the town increased overall by about 18 percent, taxation rose on 13.3 percent, largely due to a more than 30 percent jump in government grants. The increase in grants is due to special projects being undertaken by the recreation department and $35,000 to be received for planning and development.

Net expenditures in Deseronto are to be $493,985 (up $85,476), less revenue from grants and other municipal sources of $245,490 (up $56,262), leaving $248,295 (up $29,205) to be raised by taxation.

Seniors show

The Amateur Choral Group of Shannonville, under the direction of Mrs. Betty Johnston, provided the entertainment for Belleville Senior Citizens Club on Wednesday evening and were very well received. Vandals again

Vandalism has once more raised its ugly head in Deseronto, Councillor Bernie Johnston reports. At the meeting of council Monday evening, Johnston said one of the new street signs erected in town had been bent out of shape by someone who had to be of rather hefty size.

"We tried to repair the sign, but couldn't do it," Johnston said, noting that they cost $45 each. He said he expected that more signs would meet the same fate.

In another instance, vandalism has caused the town to dismantle a monument owned by the United Empire Loyalists, which was located beside the town hall. Councillor Fletcher Vick reported that "instead of having it defaced, we've saved it and put it into the town barn for future use." He said the monument, which was built without mortar and was gradually being pulled down by vandals, would cost $650 to repair. It may be resurrected next year, when funds are available, and put beside the war memorial.

Present Supermarket plans

The wheels have been set in motion to begin the proceedings for the construction of a new A & P supermarket on Main Street West in Picton.

A presentation of plans and an architect's drawing of the proposed new building was made to Picton town council Monday night at the regular meeting.

A & P officials, Don Canning and Clifford Horler were assisted in their presentation by a local real estate broker, Sam Gentile, who obtained the property options for A & P.

The building will be located on Main Street West, between Washburn and Amelia Streets, and provide much more space both for merchandise and parking.

Part of the zoning of the lots where the building is to be located is now deemed residential and the planning and development committee recommended to the council that the by-law be changed to permit the construction of the new store.

"The committee thinks the plan is good, and we want it," said Deputy Reeve Richard Byers, Chairman of the Committee. "We suggest you approve the plan in principal and meanwhile we will have a site plan agreement worked out, and we can prepare a by-law."

The site plan is a detailed plan of the construction site and unless the site plan is approved, the plan itself cannot go ahead.

The increased size of the store will allow for a much greater selection of groceries, and, according to one A&P spokesman, "we believe it will keep shoppers in Picton, who are otherwise driving to Belleville and Trenton for the variety they can find there in the food stores."

Picton students win journalism contest

Two Picton area students are the top winners in the Loyalist College journalism writing contest. First prize of $50 was awarded to Siobhan Carney of 79 King Street, Picton, a student at Belleville's Nicholson College. Second prize of $25 went to Renee Koopmans of RR 4 Picton, a student at Prince Edward Collegiate.

The contest was open to Grade 12 and 13 students in the four-county area served by Loyalist, and was judged by Jack Evans, news editor of the Trentonian, and Loyalist journalism masters Bob Huggan and John Peterson.

Other winners in the contest were Sandra Walker, a Maira Secondary School student in Belleville; Donna Orr or Wooler, a student at East Northumberland Secondary School in Madoc.

All of the students in the winning categories will have their work published in local papers, the Picton winners' articles going into the Picton Gazette.

Students who entered the contest will be invited to a one-day seminar on journalism at the College, which will include a tour of the institution's newspaper production and photography facilities.

Loyalist College has a two-year practical journalism program that covers all aspects of community newspaper production, including writing, editing, photography, layout and "back-shop" procedures.

Fun night 13th

Students and staff of Sophiasburgh Central School are showing no fear in holding their annual "Fun Night" on Friday (May) the thirteenth, relying on a past history of great successes to overcome the day's traditional bad luck.

The night opens at 7:30 pm, with students operating stands selling baked goods, crafts, canned goods, books and attic treasures. The gymnasium will also be set up as a games room, and there will be bingo and ticket draws throughout the night.

Articles for sale are donated by the parents of Sophiasburgh students, and proceeds which have averaged $500 in the past make the night the biggest event of the school each year.

According to school principal Wayne Lindsay, the night usually has great public participation, drawing many visitors from outside the township. "And believe me," he said, "we do get fantastic home-baked breads, cookies and cakes!"

Messy yards concern council

The problem of unsightly properties in Deseronto is under investigation by Council, which may decide to establish a minimum maintenance or property standards by-law.

A letter from resident Dorothy McCullough was received by Council Monday evening, which suggested the new land use by-law be amended to give it "teeth" in enforcing property standards.

Councillor Al Blayney suggested a minimum maintenance by-law itself would be better than amending the land-use by-law. He said a separate by-law would make the town eligible for a number of government grants.

Councillor David Martin concurred with Blayney, stating that Council was "laying" with a complete community renewal programme for Deseronto, and that a new by-law could be drafted when this programme was finalized.

Traffic lights still broken

Maybe things would be better in Picton without the Main Street traffic light after all.

When the spotlight on the Main Street jammed on the blinking phase, traffic seemed to be moving through Picton much better.

The pedestrians aren't entirely happy according to Councillor Bessie Ward who asked Council when it would be fixed, because she "was getting tired of telling people that it would be fixed soon."

Reeve Larry Richardson said that Ministry of Transportation and Communications representatives would be consulted about the future of the lights.

"Since the light broke there has been no traffic pile-up, but the Parking, Traffic and Police Committee is concerned about pedestrians."

The stop light was originally installed at the insistence of the late Mayor Harvey McFarland. The chairman of the streets committee had reported that the then Dept. of Highways would not approve a traffic light on the Main Street and therefore wouldn't pay a subsidy on it. Mayor McFarland told the committee to put up the light and if the Highway wouldn't pay for it, he would.

MARY KAISER

Kaiser for Liberals

Mary Kaiser, a Hay Bay resident and Adolphustown councillor, was named Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox at a nomination meeting in Napanee Monday night.

Joined by Liberal MPPs Hugh O'Neill (Quinte) and Earl McEwen (Frontenac-Addington), Mrs. Kaiser spoke out against the election call, called for better farm income stabilization, said support for small businesses would reduce unemployment, criticized the provincial debt, blasted government waffling on hydro and hospitals, and the size and overlapping of government ministries.

"Really," said Mrs. Kaiser, "after 34 years, if they can't read the wishes and needs of Ontario's residents, do they really deserve to govern any longer?"

U.S. zoologists visit snakes

The facilities of the Reptile Breeding Foundation near Milford in Prince Edward County have drawn attention from zoologists in the United States.

John Bahler, curator of the New York Zoological Park, better known as the Bronx Zoo, and Clyde Peeling, owner-director of Reptiland, Allenwood, Pennsylvania, flew in to visit the operation here on Monday.

"Our building here is absolutely unique," said Tom Huff, a director of the Reptile Breeding Foundation. "They were very impressed with our facilities and said it was refreshing to see so many new ideas. We had designed entirely new ways of heating and caging."

Mr. Huff said that Mr. Peeling planned to return shortly with one of his animal keepers to see the building.

The primary purpose of the visit was to talk with researchers at the Foundation about their findings in the field of reptile breeding. There are also tentative plans to arrange future trades and possible to enroll Mr. Peeling's help with the education program here.

The researchers in Milford have developed some successful breeding techniques which many other zoologists are anxious to learn. Mr. Huff will be addressing a symposium to be held later this year in Cleveland at Case Western University on this subject.

He said that he was very happy with the progress of the research and the increasingly cordial relations with the residents of the area, some of whom had expressed concern about the centre prior to its construction.

The Foundation is now registered as a charitable organization and donations to support research are tax deductible.

Buchanan for NDP

Barring independent latecomers, the candidate roster for Hastings-Peterborough was completed Saturday night with the successful nomination of Elmer Buchanan, of Tweed, as candidate for the New Democratic Party.

Buchanan was chosen of Dr. George Adam, 28, a Madoc physician, by about 100 supporters at an NDP convention in Madoc.

Jobs, farming, light industry and the proposed nuclear waste dump site near Madoc formed the highlights of Buchanan's acceptance speech. He said there was a need for the riding, which is almost totally rural, to create incentives for youth to stay and build the counties. Farming should be made more viable, he said, and the produce of the

Government inconsistent on energy-Nicol

"Does the Ontario Government really mean what it says about keeping costs of energy down?" Jon Nicol, NDP candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox asked the capacity audience at Friday night's rally for the party's leader, Stephen Lewis, in the riding's office at Amherstview.

"In this riding, energy costs are, perhaps, even more important than in some other ridings. Here we all have to drive cars to get anywhere, and we all know how expensive that's getting."

"There are some glaring inconsistencies in what the Government says about energy costs and what it does about them," she said.

"Take the cost of natural gas for example. Although the Government on April 1, through its spokesman Energy Minister James Taylor, reiterated its unbending opposition to any oil or natural gas price increases, a short two weeks later... in advance of the Berger report... the Government put Ontario firmly on the hook, in full support of the Mackenzie Valley pipeline.

The Scanner's contributing photographer, Dave Mercer, picked up this rather interesting portrait of Premier William Davis while he was in Picton on Saturday.

Davis to review water rates

There will be no increase in Deseronto's water rates until Premier William Davis has had a chance to review the project, Clarke Rollins, incumbent Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings-Peterborough said Saturday.

"I have received a definite commitment from Premier Davis," Rollins said, adding the increase would not go beyond the $90 household rate established under the original estimates; until Davis had a chance to review the issue.

Rollins issued the statement Saturday afternoon following a conversation with Premier Davis in Napanee. The premier stopped in the town while on a campaign tour of Prince Edward-Lennox.

Two weeks ago Mr. Rollins said he would take no action on the issue because the estimates were not a "fact". He said then he would not take any action until after the election, at which time he would approach the Minister of Environment.

Last Wednesday Liberal Party leader Stuart Smith promised Deseronto Council he would look into the increased costs, and pin the responsibility where it belongs, probably with Environment Ontario.

NDP leader Stephen Lewis has not yet promised an investigation.

The great debate

The candidates for the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox will be participating in a public debate in Bloomfield, a spokesman for the Prince Edward County Federation of Agriculture revealed this week. The Federation, which has arranged for the debate on provincial election issues, have scheduled the meet for Tuesday, May 31 at 8 pm in the Bloomfield Educare.

James Taylor, the incumbent Progressive Conservative member, as well as Jan Nicol of the NDP and Mary Kaiser of the Liberal Party have agreed to meet the press and the public on that date.

The Federation spokesman said all citizens of the riding are invited to attend, "and to ask questions of the candidates not only on matters concerning farmers, but on all issues which touch the daily lives of residents of this County."

"By the same token it is hoped that the candidates will address themselves to local issues rather than the national debates which have no bearing on this election."

The debate, to be chaired by Don Nielsen, is fully open to the public, and there is no admission charge.

IF YOU WANT UNDERPASS

Get somebody killed there

Although Napanee Council has all but decided to go ahead with applications to establish an underpass at the Canadian National Railways crossing at Centre Street, a number of factors may delay the project.

Pete Smith, an engineer from Toronto, Ont., has called on the town to do a public hearing Monday night to appeal to the Canadian National Railways. Smith would like to see the town's application for a crossing underpass at Centre Street. He says the town's application is not a crossing underpass, but a crossing overpass. The Deseronto Lions Club is planning their Second Annual Exposition for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 4, 5, and 6 this year to be held at the Deseronto and District Community Centre. The show, last year judged a great success, features displays by local industries and businesses, as well as some mild entertainment, such as bingo.

See the sign war has started. I counted nineteen Vote for Taylor signs along 49 yesterday - mind you, three of them had been down already. There's no Liberal nor NDP signs up though. Reckon the PCs are right on the ball this year, though come to think of it, maybe his missis tacks them up on her way to and from Pictou to do her shopping and such. Whoever done it, I sure hope they're going to be as keen to get 'em down after the dust settles on June 10th. I can't abide to see soggy, faded posters lying around months after the election's over.

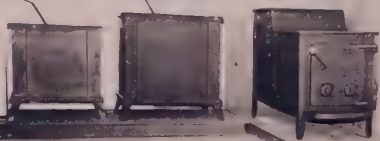

Heard my favorite election story so far. There's this elderly couple live up the road a piece from me and Elma getting on in years the pair of them, but lively as a pair of crickets. Turns out that he's a dyed in the wool Liberal, and she's a card carrying NDPer. He's out running around campaigning like crazy for one side, and she's busy raising funds for the other. Sure as shooting one day last week when he was off up town, she comes out and sticks a nice bright orange NDP sign up on the front lawn. You should of caught her in the act when she was there. Within five minutes there was a nice Liberal sign up on the other side of the lot. The sign on them is as stubborn as a mule, neither will give a smidge, so there's the war sign on.

The ending of the story were what tickled me though. You know how it is with the scrutineers at the polling stations - how they has to have one from each party to make sure as there's no hanky-panky going on? Anyway, a call comes to their house a couple of days ago, asking would she be one of these here scrutineers. She thought as it were kind of funny, her being NDP and all, but finally she said OK. Turns out they figured that she was a Liberal on account of her old man being one. Reckon if they'd known her better, they wouldn't of made that mistake, if ever there were a female as could make up her own mind, it's her. She's been doing it for a good many years now, and I don't figger that she aims to change her ways. Funny how religion and politics can split up happy couples ain't it? Seems some folks do all their fighting at election time - with me and Elma it's mainly on a Sunday when she remembers I'm a disgrace to her on account of not going to church regular. Guess it takes all kinds don't it, at least religion and politics is fairly important things to most folks. I know of one young couple who came near to ending up in the divorce courts 'cos he squeaked the toothpaste tube in the middle instead of at the end, now I reckon that's carrying principles a bit far.

Anyway, election or not, I sure hope we get some rain soon. Seems like my smart comments last week dried up the supply, and we sure could use some now. My crops ain't going to grow until it does rain, and Elma says if'n her garden hasn't had a good soak afore the weekend I've got to hook up a pipe to the old dug well and water it. So both ways I'm keeping my fingers crossed.

King Kong escapes

"King Kong Escapes" is the movie to be shown this weekend at Deseronto's theatre, and from the posters, promises to be superbly hilarious. Starring such all time greats as Akira Takarada and Mie Hama, this monster and robot studied movie will be shown at the Odd Fellows Hall on Friday at 7 pm, and Sunday at 2:00 and 6:30 pm.

Swimming class

Councillor Glen Tripp told members of Sophiasburgh Township Council Monday evening that the Recreation Committee for the Township had arranged for the hiring of a first rate swimming instructor for the summer.

Lola Wilson, of Hitter, who just recently moved to the County, has taught swimming for 10 years in Hamilton. "She said she just loves teaching, and will take anyone from preschool to adult," Mr. Tripp said.

The fees for the course will be $5 per person, or $10 per family.

"We are very fortunate to have found this woman," he said. "We will also be able to hire an assistant."

The lessons will be held at one of the resorts in Northport, or at the Centennial Park in Northport.

Over 450 people turned out Friday evening at Sophiasburgh Central School for their annual Fun Fair. Here students dropped dimes into a wishing well to get a prize.

Sophiasburgh taxes down

Taxes will be slightly lower in Sophiasburgh Township this year, approximately half a mill. The commercial rate for 1976 was 31.01 and for 1977 it is 30.40, down about 4/10 mill. For residential ratepayers it has dropped from 27.13 in 1976 to 26.73 this year.

This year approximately $179,492 will be spent in the township for general purposes, $172,870 for public school support, and $137,805 for Secondary School support.

The County has levied $87,382 from the Township this year for County expenditures.

The hamlets of Demorestville and Northport both pay for their own street lighting, through special levies imposed on a village residents only. The cost of lighting Demorestville for 1977 is estimated at $1,168, and it is expected that lighting in Northport will cost $816.

Since the expenditures will be down this year council members voted to look into the purchase of a new front end loader, which would still not raise expenditures to the level of those last year.

"I like to see us buy a little equipment at a time," Reeve George Foster told councillors. "It's folly to let all the equipment run down."

Much of the cost of such equipment is supported by a subsidy from the provincial Government, and the Council will apply for a supplementary allocation of a subsidy to assist with the purchase of the equipment, valued at approximately $30,000.

Park for market square

A portion of Napanee's old Market Square will likely be turned into a park, it was reported to the Napanee Property Committee Monday morning.

Town Clerk Jack McNamee presented four sketchy plans to councillors that showed different designs for the creation of a small park at the front entrance to the Town Hall.

The project, to be sponsored by the Napanee Farmers' Association, will likely create a sodded area with walkways, trees and benches in the square. The designs all left room for the retention of the farmer's market, although area farmers have not used it much in recent years. Clerk McNamee speculated that the current "atmosphere" of the market area may be responsible for its lack of use, but that the park may encourage the farmers.

Although committee chairman Deputy Reeve Graham Strong pressed members to approve the concept of the park, the plans were accepted as information only until a meeting with the Kinmen could be arranged.

$1,345 for trees

Only two trees in Napanee will be taken down this summer, while 17 others will be trimmed and preserved for some years yet.

The Napanee Property Committee recommended Monday that council accept an offer from Wharum Tree Service to do the work for $1,345. A tree at the corner of Centre and Isabella, and another on East Street are the only ones to be taken down.

Government inconsistent on energy-Nicol

"Natural gas from the pipeline would be much more expensive to develop and produce than the natural gas presently available from the Alberta fields," Ms. Nicol said.

"Is there an urgent need for additional, more expensive natural gas at this time of year? Not according to James Taylor's April report at the energy ministers' meeting. He told them that new discoveries and improved deliverability has resulted in a natural gas surplus and many producers were having difficulty in marketing their prod-

Deseronto Recreation News

By JACK LAYFIELD

With the knowledge and consent of the Scanner editor, I would like to first attempt a clarification of an article appearing in last week's edition entitled "Deseronto takes up 13.3%". In this article it was stated, "one of the major increases in expenditures this year was in recreation and cultural services, which is to receive twice as much money as last year."

Some residents have interpreted this to mean that recreation costs have doubled from 1976. In actual fact, recreation and cultural services in Deseronto includes the Library, the Town Parks, the Community Centre, the Recreation program, and the debenture payment representing the town's share of constructing the half million dollar community centre. This payment has been covered by additional grants in both 1975 and 1976. All the above services have therefore been grouped together and collectively represent the increased expenditure for 1977.

The 1977 recreation budget was increased this year by $1,200 due to the program expansion of baseball and the summer program, etc., but with any luck in fund-raising however, there is an excellent chance it will not be used. The anticipated purchase of a new bus is 100% dependent on a Wintario grant, plus success in raising the balance of the money from private sector fund-raising, and so has absolutely no bearing on budget increases for 1977. Wintario regulations prohibit the use of tax dollars being used for any project which they support.

Provincial average costs of recreation services in municipalities the size of Deseronto range from $5.00 to $10.00 per capita. Actual costs in Deseronto have yet to exceed $2.00 per capita. The difference rests with the availability of volunteer workers to staff committees, lead the various programs, conduct their own fund-raising events, and generally commit a sizeable portion of their free time to recreational work in the community. Deseronto has been blessed with a good many residents willing to make this type of commitment. By doing so, they not only gain personal satisfaction and benefit their own children, but also results in considerable savings to all tax-payers.

It is to be hoped this involvement by Town residents will continue, so that we will not only be an exception to the rule, but can continue to provide meaningful programs of a recreational or cultural nature at low cost.

SWIMMING INSTRUCTIONAL PROGRAM

A swimming instructional program, which was cancelled in 1976 due to mechanical problems at the Napanee Rotary Pool, will once again be sponsored by the Deseronto Recreation Committee in 1977.

Classes will be conducted Monday to Friday for a three week period from August 8 to August 27 at the Napanee Rotary Pool. Participants from Deseronto will be transported each day of classes by bus. Registration this year will be held in Napanee, at the Recreation Department office in the Napanee Town Hall on Friday, May 27, between the hours of 5 to 9 pm. Registration fees will be one child $7, or two children $14, or three or more $20. Extra charges for use of the Napanee Pool, and transportation costs will be paid by the Deseronto Recreation Committee. For further information call 396-3432.

FLOOR HOCKEY

Ice hockey players are attempting to stay in good physical condition by playing floor hockey every Thursday night at 7 pm at the arena. Anyone interested in participating should come along any Thursday night.

TENNIS

Open Tennis is now underway on Wednesday nights at 6:30 pm, also Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 1:30 to 4:30 pm. Additional times could be available during the summer, and will depend on the number of people using the arena courts.

HORSE SHOWS

First of the Quinte area horse shows got off the ground this week in Picton, where the Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club held its first show of the season on Sunday. The Prince Edward club plans three more shows over the summer, and possibly an inter-club show at the end of the season. Elsewhere the Lennox and Addington County Riders have planned their show for this Sunday in Napanee, beginning at 10 am, and concluding in the afternoon with chariot races. The following Sunday (May 29), the Sophiasburgh Riding Club will hold their horse show, just off the Bethel Road (Prince Edward Road 5).

date of the building's construction -- and an old photograph of the building may do the trick. It is believed a plate was once affixed to the top front of the building, which, while since gone astray, could show the date. Any information related to the building would be gladly received by Librarian Heather Granastein or any other member of the Library Board.

GAZETTE SOLD

Sale of the Picton Gazette to the publisher of the Napanee Beaver, J. Earl Morrison, is underway and nearly complete. The Gazette, which claims to be Canada's oldest weekly newspaper, has been owned by Joseph Cembal of Picton since 1971. Cembal will continue to operate his printing facilities in Picton Belleville, along with a number of weekly newspapers in northern Hastings County. Morrison is not expected to make any changes to the staff or makeup of the Gazette.

DATE SOUGHT

Research into the historic past of the Deseronto Public Library's building is proceeding with hopes of getting assistance from the Ontario Heritage Foundation. Of particular interest is the

FIREWORKS DISPLAY

The Sophiasburgh Township Volunteer Fire Department is holding its annual Victoria Day Fireworks Display, this Sunday, May 22, in the Sophiasburgh Centennial Park, at Northport. The display will begin at approximately 8 pm.

TAYLOR ANNOUNCES

Ontario will spend $5.7 million on renewable energy and conservation projects "over the next year," Energy Minister James Taylor announced last week. "This represents almost three times the outlay of the past year," he said. Taylor added that only $750,000 maximum will be spent by various ministries, with Ontario Hydro spending an additional $150,000. Much of the funds will be spent on "demonstrating solar technology" attained through studies done over the past two years.

Jim listens...

Jim Taylor listens when the residents of Prince Edward-Lennox speak. He is a man you can turn to who is prepared to listen and take action. On June 9th, let's vote for the man who listens to us!

TRIBUNE MICROFILMED

A volume of the Deseronto Tribune which includes papers from September 22, 1893 to September 14, 1894, was donated to the Quinte Scanner four years ago by Mrs. Nellie Maracle of Mill Street, Deseronto. The Scanner in turn sent the volume to the Ontario Archives, and is pleased to say a microfilm copy is now available for viewing in "Room Three" at the Deseronto Library. Other volumes are believed to be in the same family, and a search is continuing.

WAYSIDE EVANGEL

There are many experiences in changing Grace. Good old time conviction may do a lot of controlling, restraining and restoring, but it takes the power of the Blood of Christ to cleanse the very nature of man.

II Cor. 5:17 - old things are passed away; behold, all things become new.
Isaiah 6:6, 7-8 - having a live coal in pair of tongs from off the altar, this hath touched thy lips, and thine iniquity is taken away and thy sin is purged. Also Acts 2:3.

Also Acts 2:3 - I was saying yes, to His will when the Fire fell
I was saying yes, to His will when the Fire fell Jan 8, 1940. It's still real today. Are you hungry? Matt. 5:6; Are you thirsting after righteousness for you shall be filled.

Any question or prayer request will be confidentially handled.

Committee supports Utopians

Although most councillors seemed leery and suspicious at first, the Property Committee of Napanee Council decided Monday to recommend that the second week of June be declared "Ideal Society Week" by the town.

Chris Wilson and Debbie Siegel of Kingston, representing the International Meditation Society asked council to make the proclamation. According to Mr. Wilson, the IMS wished to "stir up talk of an ideal society" in Napanee.

He said that people often get "tired up with the practicalities of life," and that the IMS would be sponsoring lectures in the town which he hoped would create "talk about the ideal society and what it is about."

Answering a barrage of questions from Mayor Lorne Smart, Mr. Wilson told the committee that the International Meditation Society is a non-profit, educational, provincially chartered organization formed in 1965 to promote transcendental meditation, or "TM".

The committee finally agreed to recommend the town put its name to a lengthy proclamation which outlines the aims of the week, IMS, and TM, provided the Society pay for the required advertisement.

Taylor- loan ranger

An energy conservation plan that would cut home owners' fuel bills up to a third has been prepared by the Ontario Ministry of Energy. The Minister and Prince Edward-Lennox MPP, James Taylor discussed the plan with cabinet colleagues last weekend. With banks and private capital support it would let home owners finance the insulation, retrofitting and weatherproofing of their houses across the province.

"Our Ministry people have demonstrated with projects such as the Lindsay Thermographic survey that proper insulation and weatherproofing are a major means of energy conservation," he said.

"The experts are confident that adequate home insulation can cut fuel bills by a third. This means that the home owner could repay the loan out of fuel savings in three years."

The Ministry has found the banking communities very receptive and up to $100 million in low interest and short term loans might be available. The plan foresees the Ontario government itself providing a $5 million loan subsidy fund to stimulate loans up to $100 million in private money.

"To effectively cut our energy consumption across Ontario we must get widespread participation. It just would not be feasible to finance such a large scale program from the provincial treasury, nor is there need to."

The low interest loans will be made available to Ontario home owners regardless of income to insulate attics, exterior walls and basement walls, for caulking and weatherstripping windows and doors and for installing thermal pane windows and doors.

Worrying about the possibility of a nuclear waste dump in Hastings County?

..... A cornerstone of the NDP's overall plan for Ontario is the protection and enhancement of our physical environment so that it is healthy for ourselves and future generations. This involves the wise use in a long-term perspective of our lands and resources for the social good and not the immediate enrichment of a few.

Concerned about the high rate of unemployment in this area?

..... A New Democratic Government's industrial development strategy is full employment, the dispersal of economic growth and development across Ontario, the integration of industrial development into the province's energy conservation plan, enhancement of the environment and greater control over Ontario's wealth and resources. The cornerstone of a sound industrial strategy is an over-all official plan for Ontario. A comprehensive plan will designate areas in Ontario where industry needs to be encouraged in order to allow all parts of the province to reach their economic and social potential. With this plan, an NDP government will work closely with the municipal governments so that regional planning will be consistent with their needs. In areas such as Eastern Ontario, where jobs are so desperately needed, the NDP will set up incentives for secondary, labour-intensive industry. If necessary Crown Corporations will be set up to assist in the development of resource-based processing, this, of course, again providing employment.

Up to 20 students are to be hired this summer by the Nipissing Region Conservation Authority, and Mayor Lorne Smart is encouraging councillors to submit possible conservation-related projects for the group to do within the town.

Mayor Smart told the property committee Monday that "every municipality in this Authority is eligible to have some work done by this group," and that the town could receive a greater share by submitting more projects.

Deseronto, Tyendinago and Richmond Townships are in the authority's jurisdiction.

Service at Christ Church

Last Wednesday a very impressive and beautiful service was conducted in Christ Church on the Tyendinaga Reserve by the Right Reverend Henry Hill, Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, and the Right Reverend Jack Creeggan, Bishop Emeritus of the Diocese of Ontario, Colonel the Venerable Ormond A. Hopkins and the Rev. J. Arnold Dunlop, assisted by the Lay Readers Arnold Brant, Clifford John and David Maracle. Several clergy of the Diocese were present in the Chancel.

The Institution and Induction of the Rector, the Rev. J. Arnold Dunlop, was conducted by Bishop Henry Hill. The keys of the Church were presented by the Churchwardens, Laverne Hill, Donald Maracle, Elwood Brant and Jeffery Maracle. Chief William Brant welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Dunlop to the Reserve and appointed Mr. Dunlop as Chaplain to the Mohawks and presented him with a Prayer Book encased in a beautiful buckskin cover with a beaded cross on the front.

The Rector then presented a large class of 67 candidates to the Bishops to be Confirmed by them at the Altar Rail. One member of the class was not present in person, Ronald Kelly Hill was killed in an accident on April 1st.

The Rector extended a warm welcome to the large congregation who filled the Church. The Right Reverend Jack Creeggan, whose father had been Rector of the Parish for some 24 years, spent his boyhood years on the Reserve, had a brief message for the candidates telling them he was Confirmed in this same Church some 60 years ago.

The special preacher was Bishop Henry Hill who delivered a sermon of inspiration to the newly confirmed and the whole congregation. The service of Holy Communion was celebrated by Rt. Rev. Creeggan, the historic Queen Anne Silver Communion set being used. Following the service, refreshments were served to the congregation and visitors by the Mohawk Ladies Guild and an hour of fellowship was enjoyed by all.

Stuck in the muck

Is the water going down, or the muck coming up? In any case, Lake Ontario Cement is finding it difficult to fully load the larger vessels which come up to its dock on Pictou Bay to load with the company's base product, clinker, which is shipped to Michigan.

So they're applying to the federal government for permission to dredge all the offending muck away.

Sophiasburgh Township Council recently agreed with LOC's application.

Foundations for the "Fireside Inn" near completion on the shore of Picton Harbour. The planned 30 unit motel, with lounge, dining room and banquet room is being constructed by local realtor Bud Pannell. Excavations for the building revealed layers of coal dust and sawdust, remaining from the days when the site was occupied by Colliver and Huffs Feed and Fuel. Some of the sawdust was probably from the old ice house on the property. Because the site was mainly on an old land fill area, piles were driven into the ground to help stabilize the footings. The longest went down 20 feet, and the shortest 12 feet.

A fresh approach to journalism

By KAMAL ROSTOM

When Joseph Pulitzer first emerged in the field of journalism in 1883, the name of Charles Dana of the New York Sun was resounding in every corner of the United States.

Pulitzer was not an ordinary journalist. On the contrary, he was a genius with an outstanding comprehension of the role of journalism in modern times.

He came to New York equipped with new ideas and concepts and waged the most ferocious war against the then well-established Sun.

The World (his newspaper) was new in everything: in format, contents and outlook. Pulitzer's concept of journalism was different from that of Dana's, who depended solely on his eloquence. Indeed, the skyrocketing circulation of the Sun was due to Dana's pithy editorials. But what about the rest of the newspaper?

Pulitzer with his insight observed the weakness of the Sun. He addressed himself to the task of printing a newspaper that didn't live in the past. A newspaper that coexisted the occurrences of daily life. That was precisely what the readers wanted. A vivid newspaper that reflected the desires and aspirations of the ordinary man.

Stunned by the overwhelming success of the World, Dana desperately retreated to his usual weapon — taking up a battle on the editorial page with his eloquent pen as sword. But Pulitzer, the genius, knew how to open another field which Dana couldn't approach without losing much of his prestige. That was the field of news — "news and more news", Pulitzer used to reiterate. The result was a newspaper that was mobilized with hard news as well as with features, human interest stories, and lately comic strips. Lost in his strange world, Dana began to imitate and even reprint the news originally printed in the World, with slight variations and attributed them to the Sun.

Pulitzer then thought on an expedient to trap Dana. The World published a story about a man called Wepfler Thenevus. Dana as usual reprinted the story which turned out to be a fictional one created by the World for the sake of entrapping the Sun. For there was no such man by the name Wepfler Thenevus. It was simply "We pilfer the news". And that was the way Pulitzer caught the Sun stealing stories from the World.

I don't know for sure, why I recall now these incidents from my early studies of journalism in university. Perhaps because the Scanner reminds me of the World when it first emerged as a new blood in the then stagnant field of journalism.

ON FOURTH STREET

Choked to death

"Are we going to be choked to death all summer?" asked a member of Deseronto council Tuesday night.

Construction on Fourth Street, which can't resume until next year, has turned the road into a dustbowl -- "when one of those big trucks or loaders comes by you can't see for 10 or 15 minutes," Mr. Brooks reveal.

I shovelled up four big bags of dust, full of dust, and I said, 'This is what it's like'."

"Can I take it to the County?" asked Reeve Cole. Theoretically the County does the maintenance of Fourth Street, but until recently hasn't done so since the Depression.

"You can if it doesn't take all summer," replied Mr. Brooks, who previously bypassed council on the "great sewer issue" several months ago, after apparent inaction by council.

Mr. Brooks reiterated the problem, relating that "if you leave your window open for 10 or 12 hours, you can pick up a dustbowl that just off the windowsill."

Several days of dust action within a week, then retracted the statement as being a little too negative, but said some dust was in the air.

Councillor Benjie Johnston interjected at this point, and said the town would have aided the dust/areas of Fourth, except the town has been out of oil for several months. He added that the contractor, Korsan, would assist if oil didn't arrive within a few days.

PEP, SC candidates vie for H-P riding

Two new candidates have arrived on the political scene in Hastings-Peterborough -- challenging the traditional candidates representing the PCs, NDP and Liberals.

The candidates, who announced their platforms last week, are Bill Hawthorne Jr. of the Progressive Environment Party, and Gary Beamish of the Social Credit Party.

Beamish, a 21-year-old university student from Newwood near Peterborough, outlined his three point platform in a press release. "My campaign will be based on three principles," he said, "back to the people, back to fiscal responsibility, and back to the Bible."

Beamish said that fiscal responsibility was necessary "because unrestrained Governmental expenditures encourage waste in the civil service and the private sector as well."

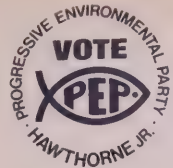

Standing on rather philosophical points, he said he wished to turn government "back to the people, because the other parties have turned into power machines." He added that the Government should adhere to the Bible, since "every society needs guiding principles with which to govern its affairs. I believe that those principles, and that example of how to live, is set in the Bible."

Hastings-Peterborough's other surprise candidate, Bill Hawthorne Jr., brings with him a party and a platform based on environmental problems in the riding. "The number one problem in Ontario at the moment is the contamination of our waters, and a possible drought," he said, "and what the repercussions would be on the Moira (River) if and when we ever had a two-foot or three-foot drop of water. In other words, if the arsenic count is high now, with high water, what would happen if we had a three-foot drop in water?"

"Since 1959 there's been a problem at Deloro. In other words, during the time of Collins, the dam collapsed in 1959 and the cattle died in Deloro in 1959. And it's been a constant battle to convince the authorities that the contamination of water of any kind, whether it's from sewage, from arsenic, or from mercury or from sulphuric acid isn't economically sound."

Hawthorne went on to say that "at this moment 300 thousand tons of arsenic is lying close to the Moira. I consider Deloro the number one health hazard in Ontario. I object to the fact that they brought it in from other areas and threw it there. They can take it out of there, or dyke it, fence it, and re-route the river.

"In a nutshell, even beyond energy problems in this area, it's a crime -- the contamination of the water, and the fact that, if we had a drought in Centre Hastings, the tourist industry really would be hurt."

Community TV: an embryo

At the last count, about 1,000 homes in Picton were receiving their television over a cable. Most of the time, those homes are getting more channels, and better pictures than homes with antennas. In addition, there is a twice weekly broadcast of programming produced locally.

Gof to say my Elmo's as good as her word. Sure as fate she had me out in that glaring sun Saturday morning, hooking up a 200 foot hose to our old dug well for to water her danged garden. Took me the better part of the morning to do it too, and then the old fool spent a couple of hours out there splashing water around like it were going out of style. Gof herself good and wet too.

Mind you, I must admit that the garden did need water though, so do my friends. I must of bragged too soon about having influence upstairs. Ain't had a drop of rain since I said it.

One thing that gets my dander up good and proper is to listen to these young nitwits what give the weather on the TV. Always saying how great it is to have sunshine all the time. If I'm to be on like this all summer, I'll enjoy listening to 'em bitch about the price of fresh vegetables and such come August. Time I think some folks have no sense at all. How in tarnation do they expect anything to grow good if it don't get no water?

Reckon they must be the folks us farmers hear jokes about. Then as that think milk from cows is dirty, and that punkins pop up out of the ground overnight, and that paggety is the stems from wheat. You can laugh, then stories ain't no filament of my imagination, I heard 'em all, every one of them. And I tell you, some folks ignorance scares me silly.

I've been kind of surprised about how much interest this hear election is stirring up. Never could see why folks got all hot under the collar about elections, not in this part of the world any ways, where they'd elect a spotted hyena, just so long as his spots was the right colour blue. Always seemed to me that there weren't much fun in playing a game you knew you didn't have a snowball's chance of winning.

Now it seems times have changed. Hear that the PC's ain't going to no meet the candidates meetings. Can see our Baby James' point anyways - can't say as I'd fancy taking on a couple of fighting winners. Like my Elmo, since that Wimmen's Year she ain't been the same at all. She found out that she'd been a second class citizen all her life and she aims to make up for it I reckon. Wimmen's Lib - more like wimmen's lip to me. So all in all, if'n Jim's too scared to take on them two ladies fer the Libs and the NDP, whose to blame him?

Policies and Programmes Ontario New Democrats THE ISSUE: FINDING A JOB

THE PROBLEM: Few issues are as significant to so many people in Ontario today as employment. That's because more than 300,000 people -- half of them under 24 -- can't find a job. They can't find a job because there just aren't any jobs to find and that can be a terrifying feeling.

DISCUSSION: These people can't find jobs because the Conservative Government's economic policies prevent it from generating the stimulus required to produce employment opportunities. That same Government has, in its latest budget, redefined full employment from 3 percent to 5.3 percent unemployment. Statistics can be fun to adjust and play with if they suit your purpose. But when those statistics represent people, it's no game. No other Government in the western world has the gall to suggest that a jobless rate of 5.3 percent constitutes full employment. In Ontario that represents 200,000 people, the equivalent of the entire work force of the city of Hamilton out of work. Permanently.

As if that weren't bad enough, the Government decided to call everybody who wasn't male and between the age of 24 and 54 a "secondary" worker. That means all women, all women, whether they're heads of families, single and self-supporting, widowed or divorced. That means all young people. And it means everybody ten years short of the usual retirement age of 65. Ten years. OUR PROPOSALS: Ontario New Democrats don't for one moment suggest that there are instant solutions for the serious unemployment problem. But it is our conviction that if a government feels that jobs must be created then that government will create jobs.

The Tories' record is singularly unimpressive. They have resorted to their stale old remedy of sales tax exemptions for new business machinery. The only point of a sales tax exemption is to encourage industry to buy machinery, and since industry isn't even using 20 per cent of the machinery it now has, a tax exemption is only a gift.

The NDP would take that $300 million in tax exemptions, give it to low- and middle-income people as a direct tax reduction. Their increased buying power would stimulate those parts of the manufacturing industry now operating below par. The other half would be put into direct job-creating programs whether in energy-saving insulation programmes, the construction of affordable housing, environmental projects or in services to people like home-care for senior citizens, which would prevent their costly institutionalization.

Over the long term we have to begin to put our secondary manufacturing sector back on its feet to create productive employment. The Conservatives have given up that goal.

The Conservatives support the Mackenzie Valley pipeline, a project that will lead to a doubling of natural gas prices in Ontario within five years. They support it even though we won't need that gas for at least 15 years. The trouble is that these higher oil and gas prices are going to hurt Ontario industry, and that means they're going to cost us jobs, some 51,000 jobs by 1983 in fact.

In another crucial area, auto parts production, the Conservatives have also failed Ontario workers. They have taken no action to stop the growth of our trade deficit under the Auto Pact to $3 billion a year. That costs Ontario jobs. We want the Auto Pact re-negotiated so that we have an even balance in our auto trade with the U.S. It's the only thing that makes sense. Wiping out the deficit would mean 20,000 new jobs in Ontario's auto parts industry.

Above all the NDP would show a determination to solve this problem, to restore some sense of hope about the economic health, short term and long term, of Ontario.

Jobs are a beginning. Government must be committed to putting names on paycheques, not unemployment cheques.

Because common sense never made more sense than now.

How many of us think that way?

I love Prince Edward County. Our

Modern agribusiness cares not!
Land is important and to take out every living tree will destroy the land

Despoil of the land deprives the will disappear.

The creeks and boys will give way

There will be no heritage of beauty

Councillor David Martin -- who is quickly becoming council's financial watchdog -- added that the County should be billed for the oil used on Fourth Street. In the 40-odd years since the County has had jurisdiction over Fourth, council has never billed the County for maintenance of Fourth, although at one time they used to receive complimentary sand and gravel. The town hasn't received that "for some years now," said Councillor Johnston.

Lions Club needs $25,000

The Deseronto Lions will need to raise $25,000 to match a $25,000 Wintario grant if they are to build their new hall, it was learned at Deseronto council Tuesday night.

Reeve Roger Cole brought up the matter, requesting that council give the Lions a letter of approval for a grant of $25,000.

The Lions have already purchased the lot, on Main Street "across from the old barber shop", and intend to make the application to Wintario.

Reeve Cole stressed that the building would cost nothing to the town, but would still be an open community facility, used by the Lions, senior citizens, and other non-profit organizations in the town who wished to use it.

No secret slander says Mayor

Youth charged with arson

A 23-year-old man has been charged with arson and breaking and entering with intent following a fire Friday on the Boundary Road, two miles north of Deseronto.

Napanee Provincial Police reported that Joseph Michael Blouin, of no fixed address, was discovered leaving the house by Constable Bob Pallard, who was on patrol at the time.

Police said that Blouin has been wanted since 1975 by the C.P. (Canadian Police) for a break and enter charge.

The Deseronto Fire Department rushed to the scene of the fire, which never got a good start. Chief Ralph Lawlor reported minor damage of $100, largely to the second storey floor. The house, which is now burned out, is owned by Don Gaulo or Rk-1 Deseronto.

Blouin will make his first court appearance today.

A youth was charged with arson in connection with the burning of this old house on the Boundary Road, north of Deseronto. The Deseronto Fire Department answered the call.

PC patronage costly-Hobson

The whole system of contract-letting in Ontario is corrupt, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Peterborough, Dave Hobson said Saturday while on a campaign blitz of Deseronto. "The 35-year rule has resulted in a patronage system that is costing the Ontario taxpayer maybe billions of dollars a year, or certainly hundreds of millions in any event."

Hobson made the allegation while commenting on the recent turnout by Clarke Rollins (PC), who recently approached Premier Davis on the Deseronto water issue after Liberal leader Stuart Smith took a stand before councillors.

"There's no way they can take any pride in their actions," said Hobson, suggesting Rollins only went to the Premier after pressure exerted by the Liberals. In earlier interviews Rollins said he would not deal with the issue until after the election, because the increase was not a "fact".

Hobson said that when the Liberals have "to become that involved before a member will act, it's got to be time for a change." He added that now Premier Davis had been approached, as well as Dr. Smith, "I'm sure, or feel hopeful that they're going to come up with a satisfactory solution." He said that, regardless of the outcome of the election, he will be "damn glad" if Deseronto finds financial relief from the increases.

No toilets for ballpark

Deseronto's juvenile baseball players must continue to use septic lagoons and latrines for bladder relief.

Reeve Roger Cole reported to council that Canado Optical, which donates one of the two fields used, were in "no way interested in having us put in the portable washroom facilities." The public school, where the other diamond is, reacted in the same way he said.

Council voted to accept Reeve Cole's recommendation to drop the matter.

The present housing lot increased 50% in 1975 alone. 2-3 of all people in Ontario can't afford to buy adequate housing. The Liberal Policy can reduce the cost of a home by $10,000, to $15,000.

Why stress Holiness?

God is Holy.
His Son is Holy.
The Bible is Holy.

He wants a fellowship of Holy people.
Holiness is the main theme of the Bible.

We should be Holy and blameless.
Eph. 1:4, Lev. 20:7.

God commands Israel to be Holy.
He commands today, Peter 1:16.

Boy drowns near Picton

A youngster from Lachne, Quebec was declared dead Saturday after he was found drowned in a man-made pool near Picton.

Stephen Michael Kindellan, 5, was found floating face down in the pond, located on the Glenora Road farm of Robert Harvey, by his father.

Provincial police do not know how the boy drowned, but added he was playing in the area beside the pond at the time of the incident.

The Kindellans were vacationing the holiday weekend at the Harvey farm. Robert Harvey was the boy's uncle.

Provincial police constable Thomas Goodkey was the investigating officer.

LIBERALS ASK

MARY KAISER

Are PC candidates hiding?

The two Progressive Conservative candidates in Prince Edward-Lennox and Hastings-Peterborough were criticised by their Liberal opponents this week for their refusal to attend all-candidates meetings.

Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Peterborough, lashed out at incumbent Clarke Rollins. Hobson said that Rollins has refused to attend any of up to eight all-candidates meetings planned for the riding. He added that Rollins sent a representative to a meeting at a Bancroft Secondary school, but that person was so uninformed on the issues that Bancroft students were sending a letter of complaint to Rollins.

Mr. Rollins was quoted in the Mar-Mora Herald yesterday as saying his duty to his constituency fully occupies his time, and that his campaign manager had decided he didn't have time for "these public, so-called candidates' meetings."

In Prince Edward-Lennox, Liberal candidate Mary Kaiser condemned incumbent James Taylor for his refusal to participate in meetings sponsored by riding organizations. Mrs. Kaiser said that the Lennox and Addington Federation of Agriculture, the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation in Napanee, and a group of students from Prince Edward Secondary School had all received agreements for appearances from herself and Jan Nical, the NDP candidate, but that Taylor had refused.

"It is very unfortunate for the voters of Prince Edward-Lennox that there is only one opportunity available to them to question all three candidates in a public forum -- that is May 31 in Bloomfield at the Education Centre," Mrs. Kaiser said.

The three candidates will also be featured in a live debate on CJOH TV at 11:45 p.m. Friday evening.

MAINSTREETING

The following is an excerpt from a Peterborough weekly newspaper, Common Press: "The procession, bathed in the glaring artificial light of the camera crew Lewis had brought with him from Toronto, flowed through the deserted heart of the city. Tow or three middle-aged passers-by brushed past, leaflets pressed into their recently shaken hands... (at NDP HQ) Lewis mounted a chair to deliver a short pep talk... Meanwhile, his daughter, the one in the poster on the wall, darted through the distracted audience dodging donuts and playing with rubber stamps."

Ministry is "disgusting"

The Ministry of the Environment has once more drawn the wrath of Deseronto Council. Reacting to a letter from the ministry, Councillor Al Blowney termed it "disgusting", at Tuesday's meeting of council.

The offensive letter arose out of a request from council to have the sanitary sewer extension to the proposed 30-house Fallwell and Aythart subdivision, located at Main and West Streets, included in the town's overall costs for the system.

Clerk Cormen Milligan began the process by sending the request, under Council's direction, to the Environment ministry's Kingston office, on March 18 of this year. Two months later, the Toronto office replies that the request has been received. They ask Milligan to "please forward at your earliest convenience a resolution from your Town Council requesting this Ministry to investigate the possibility of assisting the Town with the installation..."

"In a sense," said Councillor Blowney, "they sent us a letter asking for another letter. We already decided the need for it (the extension) when we sent our letter."

Councillor Blowney condemned Environment Ontario's delays, noting the nine weeks elapsed before the ministry replied, and then said nothing. He said the red tape is "discouraging a lot of developers," who would otherwise build.

Council decided to send the ministry its resolution, with the proviso that the costs for any studies be borne by the ministry. Councillor David Martin made the suggestion, noting "what we don't need is another G.S. Love and Associates study." G.S. Love was the main consulting firm used in the planning of the Deseronto Water Plant, and their fee rose from an original $88,000 to $535,000.

Building condemned

Reeve Roger Cole told Deseronto council Tuesday that homeowners with neighbouring properties in tumble-down conditions "do" have a way to force improvements.

The reeve reported that a house beside the town barns was condemned by both the Health Inspector and Building Inspector last Thursday. The owner of the building will have to either tear it down, or repair it.

Cole said that the County inspectors were quite willing to come down and do the investigations, and would condemn buildings in they are "in need or repair, or in an unsafe condition".

Some residents, in the past few months, have approached council with problems of decaying houses on either side of them.

Charter astounds candidates

A charter outlining the principles and commitments of the Progressive Conservative Party, issued late last week by Premier William Davis, drew heavy fire from opposition candidates in two local ridings last weekend.

Dave Hobson, Liberal candidate for Hastings-Peterborough, said in an interview Saturday that the charter was almost unbelievable -- "three weeks ago Davis was in charge of a Government that wasn't doing anything like that," he said.

In Prince Edward-Lennox, Jan Nicol, the NDP candidate, told supporters at a dance held in Demorestville Friday night that she was "astounded" to see the charter.

"Then he called the election," she said, "he said he would not make any rash promises, as was done before the 1975 election. Yet, today, we are presented with a program which must surely stretch the credibility of even the most ardent Tory supporter."

"Can we seriously believe their housing promises of 900,000 new housing starts when they have never come close to their targets in the past."

"It is interesting to note their wide-ranging proposed program included nothing about water pollution," she said. "Apparently even the Tories feel the public couldn't swallow that one."

"All these things he's proposing cost money. And this is the man who asks us where the NDP is going to get money to pay for our programs."

"The NDP knows where it's going to get 300 million dollars. We would stop the existing give-aways to those special interest groups which support the Conservative party."

"Mr. Davis has given no indication of where he would get the money for his program. And Ontario is already close to 1.2 billion dollars in debt," said Ms. Nicol.

Councillor Garnet Ackerman and Town Clerk Andy Jarvis keep their cool in spite of the bright lights and TV cameras. This was the first Picton council meeting to be taped for local programming on Quinte Cablesvision.

the summer months, funded mostly by Opportunities for Youth and Local Initiatives Project grants.

The students were both originally trained in the Communications course at PECL and helped Ms. Perron with the equipment at first.

The Communications program at the high school, taught by Nigel Sivel, is primarily a senior course, and covers all aspects of television, from the operation of the equipment, to the impact of television on the community.

This year, there are 12 full time students and another 6 are doing some part time work in television. In addition, another group is actively involved in the broadcast club, and it has occasionally worked with Ms. Perron when more elaborate equipment is required. Within the school more and more use of television is taking place, in language courses, in English and theatre arts, and by most departments to record regular broadcasts which are used to supplement the curriculum.

People are becoming increasingly aware of the uses of television, and the ease with which the equipment can be operated. "There is a much greater interest in the program than when it first started," said Ms. Sivel.

Ms. Perron, of Quinte Cablesvision has most recently drawn attention to her programming by asking permission to tape meetings of the Prince Edward County Board of Education and the Picton Town Council.

The Board of Education seemed dubious about the prospect of having their meetings, which are open to the public, broadcast, but eventually decided that upon "request or invitation" she may attend meetings.

In Picton, town councillors were less reserved, and a meeting has already been taped, with the assistance of the broadcasting club, who spent the better part of an afternoon wiring the council chambers for light, sound and extra television cameras required.

Perhaps the most exciting aspect of community cablesvision is that the Canadian Radio and Television Commission (CRTC) encourages co-operation between the cable companies and the communities they serve.

Ms. Perron is the first to stress this. She is anxious to help anyone interested in using the facilities to produce material, and is looking for ideas for her weekly program all the time.

"I'm doing a series on Prince Edward County authors, on hobbies and local craftsmen. We've filmed special activities, parades and the Gold Cup activities," she said.

At the present time, since she is doing all the programming single handed, she must rely on volunteers to help with interviews. "When I'm working the camera, I can't very well interview someone else."

Seniors to stay senior

At the May General Meeting of the United Senior Citizens Club, a unanimous decision was reached to request the Province to lower the age to fifty-five for seniors to join the club. This club confirmed another proposal to have officers in June for the year starting in September, instead of January.

The club decided to have a Pot Luck Supper on June 15th, to raise money before summer recess. After some discussion, it was decided the club would hire a hall for a trip to Niagara Falls and a picnic in the park. The cost for the picnic will be paid by the members. The trip will be scheduled for Monday, June 20th. The president, Mabel Wilson, announced the club was forming a new local church in Kingston or Mississauga.

A resolution was passed unanimously requesting the United Senior Citizens of Ontario, Inc. to petition the federal government to reduce the age of the Government of Ontario's pension plan from 65 to 55. The club is also planning a special rate of 50 cents per month for seniors who are 55 or older.

Ontario banana republic?

Despite early suspicions that this election would not spark much interest in the public, Jan Nicol, NDP candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox told supporters at a fund-raising dance held in Deserontoville Friday evening that there is better public awareness this time around. "I've canvassed in a lot of election in the past years," she said. "Back then it was difficult to make people realize what was happening. This is the first campaign in which it has seemed to sink in. People haven't changed their way of life yet, but they are worried — because tomorrow is here, now."

Speaking on Ontario's economic policies, Ms. Nicol said "You might also have heard that Mr. Davis once again received a good credit rating for his recent visit to the U.S. American investment is important to this province. But we must also ensure that, with each investment, Canadian resources and jobs are not put in jeopardy."

"Of course New York investors love the Conservative Government. They receive concessions here that would be unheard of even in a banana republic," she said.

Legion week

Details of activities planned for Legion Week in Deseronto will be outlined to council at their next meeting, on June 8.

Comrade Marvin Brooks wrote council, revealing that "Ontario Provincial Command of the Royal Canadian Legion has designated the week of June 26 to July 2 as Legion Week."

The Legion has planned a number of lively community activities, to be held each day of the week. Mr. Brooks and Legion President Ross Carron will present the schedule to the council.

Chris Misener, an expert on Canadian glassware who operates the "Looking Glass" on Highway 33, spoke on her subject to the Prince Edward Historical Society at the regular meeting last Wednesday. Mrs. Misener illustrated her talk with examples.

Project creates jobs

A total of 6 jobs have been created through a Young Canada works grant to the Town of Deseronto, Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings Riding reported last week.

Mr. Ellis said that the Ministerial Advisory Board had approved the grant, which totals $9,126.

Councillor Stephen Heffernan said that the workers will be employed with maintenance and repair duties at the arena and throughout the town, wherever they are required.

Seventeen other grants in the Hastings riding were awarded, for a grand total of $167,968.

A Canada Works program is to begin this fall, and Councillor Clarence Zieman is urging councillors or anyone else in the town, with projects in mind, to submit applications before the August 26 deadline. Information is available at the municipal building.

The other opinion

BY KAMAL ROSTUM

Does a newspaper have the right to censor an opinion that disagrees with its policy on local or international affairs? The Canadian newspapers in general profess that they print all the views that come to them.

On the face of it, it seems true. But actually it is the other way around. As an Egyptian journalist and author living in Canada, I have observed that some Canadian newspapers are very sensitive to the "other opinion". They prefer monologues to dialogues. Indeed their narcissism and egotism are so devastating that they loathe to hear voices other than their images. It is regrettable that their soliloquies are ineffective and pointless. The reader knows by his intuition that what he reads is unilateral and lopsided. Thus, instead of reacting to what he reads, he is forced to fall into a state of inertia and non-participation. To the disadvantage of the newspaper, the reader loses interest in the interaction presumably existent between him and the newspaper.

This state of affairs brings to mind a controversy that took place in Egypt many years ago (before president Sadat lifted the censorship on newspapers) between opponents and advocates of governmental censorship.

The supporters of government censorship claimed that this kind of censorship is far better than newspaper censorship. They established their opinion on the notion that once the editor is the censor, after a time he becomes far worse than the governmental censor. For while the censorship exercised by the government allows for at least an infinitesimal degree of opposition, the newspaper censorship doesn't allow for any degree of opposition whatsoever, and that is - they say - the worst kind of censorship.

Indeed, there is nothing new in saying that censorship under any guise is abominable: Writers, poets and thinkers throughout the ages condemned it. Once it was described as ghosts, another time as the devil himself, and at all times equated with the most obnoxious crimes. To kill an opinion is tantamount to killing a human soul, and no reason whatsoever justifies the suppression of an opinion.

The Canadian newspapers - or some of them - that ban the other opinion solely because it differs from their own are, in effect, inflicting immeasurable harm on themselves, whereas they could increase their reliability and consequently their readership by giving the other opinion appropriate coverage.

It would be laudable for newspapers that almost always criticize and condemn other governments for blocking out the opinions of the opposition, to start with themselves and give "the other opinion" its due respect.
